Hear Cheerful John Moody.
Observe Barney Deboka.
A Shark and George Kojac.
Mr. Swope's Lightning.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

(Copyright, 1928.)

JOHN MOODY studies and thinks, and predicts five more years, at least, of rising values and prosperity. "The old breeders of financial panic that brought on the crises of 1893, 1903 and 1907 have disappeared."

We are living in a new kind of America, with a new kind of prosperity. "America's world of today is not the world of 20 years ago," says Mr. Moody.

If you were feeling gloomy, cheer up.

MANY are prosperous, NOT all. Barney Deboka, having vainly hunted a job, stood at a restaurant window, watching a woman turning butter cakes. He fell in a faint and doctors are treating him for starvation.

Great is the power of civilization, training a man so well that he stands watching food until he drops of hunger rather than steal. Man is a teachable animal.

GEORGE KOJAC, of New York, established a new world's record for swimming 100 meters backstroke. One more American winner not a "Nordic." Kojac's time was 1 minute 9 4-5 seconds.

A SHARK swims two miles in one minute. While he was learning to swim so fast man was learning to think. Men catch sharks often. Sharks rarely catch men.

WITH automobiles men easily outrun the fastest land animals. Flying machines go faster than any bird. But on water, ideal speed element, 100 per cent ballbearing, man has not been able to equal even comparatively slow fishes. A new idea is needed there.

WITH photography science does wonders, takes pictures of stars not seen through the telescope and shows "outside universes" 1,000,000 light years from our galaxy.

A light year is the distance that light travels in a year, going 186,000 miles a second. One million light years is a long journey.

Now the camera, analyzing a lightning stroke for engineers of the General Electric Company, shows that lightning goes about its business swiftly.

It developed 2,500,000 volts in forty millionths of a second.

When will Mr. Gerard Swope, boss of General Electric, show a machine to harness and use lightning?

OUR gangsters take their murdering seriously—vengefully. Frankie Uale, boss of Brooklyn's underworld, shot to death as he rode in his fine Lincoln car, was buried in a $30,000 coffin.

One floral tribute bore in forget-me-nots the promise "We'll see them, kid." Police called this a promise of vengeance.

Yesterday C. Marino was found near the place where Uale was killed with twenty-five savage knife wounds on his back, sides and legs.

The man's pockets were full of money scorned by the killers.

MR. RASKOB, manager of the National Democratic campaign, intends to know all about farm relief, and has engaged Prof. Seligman, learned economist of Columbia University, to look into the matter.

Mr. Raskob says he has never read the McNary-Haugen bill, but he agrees with Gov. Smith that an equalization fee, which would make government and taxpayers meet the cost of selling surplus farm products, is not to be tolerated. A better plan can be found.

A SEA captain reports that the Gulf Stream has reversed its direction, between longitude 50 West and longitude 40 West. Science does not explain the mystery of the Gulf Stream. But Great Britain depends on it. If that stream, which is Britain's hot water system, were cut off, London would be as cold as Labrador, Scotland would freeze, and 30,000,000 Britishers would move hastily to the Dominions.

The well known "visitor from Australia," standing on the ruins of London Bridge would find everything covered with ice.

HELEN MORGAN, indicted for running a night bootlegging club, says the Federal court is tiresome, the whole affair bores her and yawns as she posts $1,000 bail.

You can't blame the little lady for being bored. She knows that bootlegging, part of our so-called civilization, is here to stay.

Locking up one little lady and interfering with her trade is like killing one mosquito instead of draining the swamp.

THE Roman Osservatore, organ of the Vatican, says Callès and his friends are responsible for the assassination of Obregon.

The latter, says Osservatore, had 32 bullets in his body. Toral, half-demented young murderer, had only six bullets in his gun. Who fired the other seven.?

RUIN TRAILS HURRICANE

NEW SMYRNA, Fla., Aug. 8.—(AP.)—The roof of the Fort Pierce railroad station was carried away by a violent windstorm which struck that city, south of here, early this morning, said advices received here before wire communication failed.

At Sebastian, midway between Melbourne and Vero Beach, the gale was reported to have reached a velocity of 100 miles an hour.

A rapidly falling barometer, stiffening east winds and a heavy sea pounding the coast caused hurried preparations here for what is expected to be a serious storm. At noon a number of trees already had been blown down.

BUILDINGS FELLED

MELBOURNE, Fla., Aug. 8.—(AP.)—The train crew of the northbound Florida East Coast "Havana Special," reported on arrival here today that roofs had been carried away and light buildings toppled over at Fort Pierce and Stuart by the tropical storm.

The train passed through that area this morning, at which time the disturbance appeared to be centering between Vero and Fort Pierce, members of the crew said, and moving northward.

At Melbourne the wind was blowing at a rate of between 40 and 50 miles an hour and a heavy rain was continuing, but no serious damage had been caused.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Aug. 8.—(AP.)—The tropical storm which has isolated a wide stretch of the east coast of Florida and wreaked heavy damage to coast-line cities, turned inland over Central Florida this morning and was reported howling across South Osceola county in the northern fringe of the Everglades.

The disturbance was said to be still of great intensity and there was no news from the area immediately affected.

Before recurving the storm had lashed more than a hundred miles of the coast line from Delray Beach to Melbourne, leaving extensive property damage, but so far as has been ascertained no loss of life.

The Mallory Liner Algonquin, after losing her bearings last night in the terrific seas churned up by the hurricance, was reported safely riding out the storm this morning. There are 300 passengers aboard her. No report came from the Honduran steamship Lempira.

GENE MAY WED PGH. HEIRESS

Pittsburgh society people and others today expressed great interest in the report that Gene Tunney, retired heavyweight pugilistic champion, was to marry Miss Mary Josephine Rowland Lauder, of Greenwich, Conn., member of a formerly socially prominent family here who had much to do with the early steel industry in Pittsburgh.

Miss Lauder is the daughter of the late George Lauder, Jr., millionaire steel manufacturer and one-time partner of Andrew Carnegie. The family lived in Pittsburgh for many years, maintaining a palatial residence at 7403 Penn avenue, in the Point Breeze section. They left this city in 1918 and recently have been making their home at Greenwich. Both society and sportdom now are wondering if this rumored engagement was not the real reason for Tunney's retirement from the ring.

Rumor has it that Miss Lauder and Tunney are to be married next month, the ceremony taking place in Scotland or France. Relatives and friends of the former Pittsburgh girl have denied the engagement. Floyd Barbour, Miss Lauder's secretary, according to telegraphic reports, declares the stories are founded on nothing but rumor.

All 31 Dead As Sub Is Raised

International News Service.

ROME, Aug. 8.—All Italy today mourned the death of 31 men trapped in the submarine F-14 when it sank in the harbor of Pola after a collision with a destroyer during naval maneuvers.

Rescuers had performed an almost superhuman feat in bringing the submarine to the surface 34 hours after it sank, but poisonous gases inside the hull of the undersea craft had doomed the two officers and 29 men of its crew hours before it reached the surface.

The submarine was raised by powerful cranes mounted on floating pontoons. Heavy seas hampered the rescue workers, but, buoyed by hope that the crew of the submarine were alive after submarine telegraph communication had been established, they worked on, disregarding personal danger.

A few hours before the submarine was finally raised, at 6:30 p. m. (Italian time), the signals from the submarine ceased. Despite this ill omen, the rescuers clung to the hope that the members of the ill-fated undersea boat's crew had only been overcome by foul gases or had moved to the conning tower.

However, the amazing efforts of the rescuers had been in vain. All of the submarine's crew were dead.

The F-14 sank at 8:45 a. m. Monday. It had suddenly appeared on the surface of the harbor of Pola, off Brioni Island, right under the prow of the destroyer Guiseppi Missori. The collision followed. The submarine sank immediately in 131 feet of water but the destroyer was not badly damaged.

The officers who died in the submarine were Capt. Weil and Commander Fasulo. Admiral Foschini was in charge of rescue operations.

The F-14 normally carried a crew of only 35 but several apprentice mechanics were aboard during the naval maneuvers in which the submarine was taking part when it sank.

RIDICULED, BOTH SAY, BLAMING OTHER

War between County Commissioners E. V. Babcock and Charles C. McGovern broke out anew today. The trouble started when awarding a contract for two bronze cases for Soldiers and Sailors Memorial Hall to the Michaels Art Bronze Company, the only concern to submit a bid, was discussed.

Commissioners Joseph G. Armstrong and Babcock voted that the contract be awarded to the company. It was for $3,505. Commissioner McGovern voted against the award, claiming that the competitive bidding act was being ignored.

WANTS MORE BIDS

"An effort should have been made to have more than one bid submitted," said Commissioner McGovern.

"Well, why didn't you use the telephone and call up others and have them submit bids," Commissioner Babcock replied. "You have that privilege."

Arising from his chair, Commissioner McGovern charged Babcock with ridiculing him.

"Ridicule is one of the worst things to be administered to a colleague," McGovern said, "and for some time you have been ridiculing me. If there is any one man who has done things to be ridiculed for it is you," said the irate commissioner.

"If I have been, it was you

Brennan, Dem Chief, Dies

CHICAGO, Aug. 8.—(AP.)—George E. Brennan, Democratic National Committeeman and master mind of Illinois Democracy since the passing of Roger Sullivan, died today.

The death of the veteran Democratic chief came at 8:10 o'clock this morning, following a coma of several hours during which his sturdy constitution alone had warded off the end which had seemed inevitable since yesterday.

Mr. Brennan was stricken ill more than a week ago with a tooth infection. Septic poisoning developed after an operation for the removal of two teeth. His physicians, however, gave him an even chance to recover until Monday night, when his kidneys ceased to function.

SMITH SUPPORTER

Mr. Brennan was one of the staunchest supporters of Gov. Alfred E. Smith for the presid-, both in 1924, when he first sought the presidential nomination, and again this year at Houston when the New York Governor was chosen to head the party's national ticket. It was Brennan's suggestion that Franklin D. Roosevelt, ever opposed to Tammany hall, be selected to nominate Smith at the national convention. Brennan, too, was given credit for the first realization of the value of night sessions at Houston, creating the possibilities of radio broadcasting.

Several weeks ago the Illinois chief paid a visit to Gov. Smith in New York.

Long a bulwark of Illinois Democracy and for eight years its guiding hand, his passing on the eve of another presidential campaign was regarded as an almost irreparable loss by his party associates.

HEAT KILLS 6TH; TO HIT 90

With high temperatures prevailing to the central plains, no break in the heat wave which has enveloped Pittsburgh for a week, and has caused six deaths in three days, is indicated.

"The mercury will go to about 90 late today," said Forecaster W. S. Brotzman, "or about five degrees above yesterday's peak. The same kind of weather we are having here extends West to the Mississippi. Nearly all points along the Ohio valley reported 90 yesterday. At 8 a. m. the humidity was 88, two points below yesterday. A westerly breeze was only six miles an hour."

Scattered showers at noon turned the mercury back two degrees from 82 to 80, but soon after the rain ceased the temperature began rising again. Showers may occur late today and tonight, Brotzman said, but the effect on the heat will be negligible.

The sixth heat victim, John Jovisilik, 45, of 1512 East Ohio street, died last night in St. Francis Hospital, where he was taken after being overcome while at work in the Crucible Steel Company plant, Lawrenceville.

It cost Barney Reilly $10 to want a cigaret.

Reilly, who hails from the Lawrenceville district, was stopping pedestrians and autoists at Fifth avenue and Grant street last evening and, according to Patrolman George Hook, who made the arrest, was "trying to bum a cigaret." Magistrate John Orie in Central Police Court, today imposed the fine.

STRAW VOTE BALLOTS POUR IN FOR U. S. POLL

Registered voters by the hundreds of thousands are now being asked to express their choice for President as between Hoover and Smith.

In this nation-wide canvass of public sentiment The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph is playing a major part.

Every ward, every district in the city, every borough, township and rural community is being combed for an honest, sincere reply to the question of presidential preference.

And in all this vast canvass for straw votes there has been and will be absolutely no consideration given to classes of voters, names of voters or other personal matter. A general expression is sought, and this is being obtained from registered voters in every sort of community from the poorer districts to the homes of the wealthy, from the crowded marts of men to the sparsely settled farm sections.

Hearst papers throughout the country are co-operating in gathering this gigantic poll, and it is expected the results will express themselves at the November election.

Specialists in political affairs will be consulted as the figures roll up and they will present their views on what the totals indicate. Frequent summaries of the national straw vote will be announced, showing how various states are voting in the test balloting. Some reports have been sent out, although the official announcement of figures and facts is not scheduled until next Sunday. However, the preliminary reports are sufficiently interesting to make it apparent that this straw vote has been accepted seriously by all types of voters in all sections of the country.

Because women are expected to exert a large influence at the coming election, the straw vote has been so planned that women throughout the nation will have as much voice as the male voters.

Without doubt, the fact that this is practically a secret vote appeals to a large proportion of the registered voters, and the return double postal cards are pouring into The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph office, eloquent testimonial to the assertion that this is one of the most stirring and vital elections held in many years.

SMITH ASKS TO MEET STRATON IN PULPIT

GOVERNOR

Gov. Alvin T. Fuller, Massachusetts, went golfing at Oakmont. "So glad to meet you, governor!" says Mrs. J. Raymond Price, as she shook hands when he came up to the ninth hole. "Charming ladies and wonderful golf course," was the governor's comment as he rejoined his foursome.

SMITH WANTS PULPIT DEBATE WITH STRATON

By RAYMOND I. BORST.
International News Service.

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 8.—There was a possibility today that Gov. Al Smith will open his active campaign for the presidency early in September with a debate with the Rev. John Roach Straton, noted pastor of the Calvary Baptist Church, New York City.

Deeply aroused because Dr. Straton, from the pulpit of his church, had pictured him as "the deadliest foe in America today of the forces of moral progress and true political wisdom," Smith called upon the New York clergyman to permit him to answer the charge from the same pulpit during the week of September 2.

DISTURBED BY CHARGES

Close friends of the Governor said today that the charges hurled at him by Dr. Straton have disturbed him more than anything else that has occurred since he was nominated for the presidency. They predicted the meeting between the executive and the clergyman would be one of the most dramatic incidents in America's political history.

"I do not know why you should make a statement of that kind, but I do know that I will never permit it to go unchallenged," the Governor wrote Dr. Straton. "Have spent 25 years in the service of the state in elective office, and the record of that service is open to the public. I do not feel that I should charge you with making this statement for any political purpose, as it was made in a church devoted to the teachings of Christ, one of which was 'Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor.'

ASKS CHURCH HEARING

"I therefore ask you, in a spirit of American fair play, to invite me to your church at any time that suits your convenience during the week inclusive and beginning September 2, and I ask you to make the same statement in my presence, with such proof of its truth as you may be able to advance. I further ask that you permit me to make full reply. In order that you may not be embarrassed, I will permit you, if you choose, to conduct the meeting by question and answer. I will be ready to answer any question you may put to me which, in your opinion, will in any degree tend to justify your remarks.

"For eight years I have been the Governor of the state of which you are a resident, and I am firmly convinced that you owe it to me to give me an opportunity to be heard before your own congregation on your statement that you made about my political career."

Pointing to the many improvements in the state's government, brought about during the eight years he has occupied the chair of chief executive, Smith told his confidants he is certain Dr. Straton cannot find anything in his political career that can possibly substantiate the charge that he is a foe of moral progress.

The Governor's advisers feel that a debate with Dr. Sraton would afford him a splendid opportunity to launch his active campaign for the presidency. If Smith's friends have their way, his debate with Dr. Straton, if it can be arranged, would be broadcast over a network of radio stations.

TO CLEAN UP SARATOGA

Acting under direct orders from Gov. Smith, a score of state troopers in civilian clothes today were conducting an intensive investigation of gambling and vice conditions at Saratoga Springs. Before sending the troopers to the famous racing resort, the Governor warned the sheriff and district attorney of Saratoga county and the commissioner of public safety of Saratoga Springs, that their removal would follow if gambling and vice conditions were uncovered.

According to word from Saratoga, the lid was clamped down tight as soon as it was learned that the Governor had directed the troopers to police the resort.

Sheriff William N. Cromie, of Saratoga county, said today he had ordered his deputies to make a thorough investigation, while District Attorney John B. Smith announced that he was prepared to prosecute all persons charged with gambling.

Reports are said to have reached Gov. Smith that the Republicans were planning to attack him in the coming campaign because of the alleged wide-open conditions at Saratoga.

NAB 'INFORMER' AS PICKPOCKET

Frank Robinson, 35, Negro, of Detroit, Mich., is a narcotic informer for the government, according to his statement in Central Police Court today. Detective Frank Ferris, who arrested Robinson at Logan street and Wylie avenue, is the narcotic specialist of the city force and did not recognize Robinson in the role of an informer. He did accuse him of being a pickpocket and said Robinson's photo appears in the rogues' gallery. The prisoner was fined $50.

Girl Says Boy Died In River

Search for William Clifford, 21, son of Joseph Clifford, a city building inspector, was begun this afternoon after his companion, Agnes Theis, 20, of 692 Ellsworth avenue, Heidelberg, had related to the coroner what she said were the facts in connection with his disappearance from a camp on Twelve Mile Island last night. Miss Theis told the coroner that other campers had said Clifford was drowned. At the Clifford home today it was admitted the young man is missing.

Much excited, the girl appeared at the morgue today inquiring about the finding of a body in the Allegheny river. She said he had been stopped from going out in a canoe early in the evening. Later other campers told her they found the canoe overturned, she said.

which was badly crippled by the storm last night, but she was assumed to be safe since the steamer Castilla stood by her for possible emergency and was in communication with land wireless stations.

Strong gales were predicted for the West Florida coast from Tampa north to Appalachicola, although the weather bureau report did not predict just where the storm would emerge from the mainland into the Gulf of Mexico.

In thus recurving to cross the peninsula, this storm, although less severe than the hurricane of September, 1926, was following virtually the same course across the state except that it ranged about a hundred miles further to the north. The 1926 hurricane wrecked Moore Haven on Lake Okeechobee, but from best advices the present storm will miss the Great Marsh Lake.

FEAR FOR CITIES

The storm entered the mainland through the famous Indian River citrus district and grave fears were felt for the heavily-laden trees in that area and throughout South Central Florida.

Lack of communication prevented any estimate of damage already done, but growers believed that losses to oranges and grapefruit would prove one of the largest items of property damage.

The ridge section of South Central Florida, dotted with orchards, appeared to be in the direct path of the gales.

TAMPA NEXT

TAMPA, Fla., Aug. 8.—(AP.)—Wind velocity of 40 or 50 miles an hour was forecast for Tampa and vicinity this afternoon or tonight by Meteorologist Bennett, as the tropical storm which battered the East Coast last night turned inland and swept northwestward.

If the storm continued its northwest direction the center of the disturbance would pass north of here, Mr. Bennett said, but high winds were to be expected.

Shortly before noon the sky was overcast with occasional rain squalls and a brisk breeze from the north kept three freighters in the bay. They were the Japanese steamer Cuba Maru, scheduled to sail today for foreign ports; the Dutch freighter Park Haven from Gulf Port, and the Spanish steamer Mar Baltico. The two latter were unable to dock because of rough winds and sea.

Some misgiving was felt for the Mallory freighter Alamo, which left New York last Thursday and was overdue here this morning.

Commissioner Armstrong said that the competitive bidding act was not ignored.

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 8, 1928

SEE ACTION BY CITY ON AIRPORT IN WEEK

The Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce selection of an airport has been approved by government engineers and the recommendations are expected to reach the County Commissioners and City Council for official action within a week. The report of Department of Commerce specialists was obtained yesterday by James Francis Burke, a member of the airport committee, who forwarded it to Pittsburgh.

A. E. Braun, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce committee, declared today his committee early next week would take final action in connection with Pittsburgh's airport. Mr. Braun said reports of the United States Department of Commerce airport inspectors had reached him this morning.

The committee probably will meet Monday and adopt its report which is now being drafted. It will then be referred to the Chamber of Commerce directors at a special meeting. It is expected the directors will then recommend to the County Commissioners and City Council that the site selected by the committee be acquired.

It is hoped that work will be begun on the site within another week, but preliminary to that it will be necessary for engineers to complete their inspection of the property.

Mr. Braun explained his committee is not an official organization of the city or county and that its selection must, of course, be considered only as a recommendation. The report, he indicated, will cover the investigation of about 200 sites submitted by citizens throughout the county. Comparisons of figures in efficiency and cost between several of the sites will be submitted to show why the committee made its final selection.

Members of the local organization committee worked for several months looking over the various locations proposed as the airport. They finally agreed on one site and the government men were asked to make an inspection. The report received today is a detailed report of the survey. The men who served with Chairman Braun on the committee are A. L. Humphrey, H. H. McClintic, John F. Casey, Morris Knowles, W. L. Monroe and Mr. Burke.

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Aug. 8.—The Rev. S. T. McKinney, of Fort Worth, Tex., a native of Lawrence county, will return here Sunday to occupy the pulpit of the First Presbyterian Church.

Blue Law Arguer Fined

S. L. Simonson, proprietor of a bakery and ice cream parlor at 1917 Murray avenue, one of 11 storekeepers arrested in a Sunday closing crusade waged in the Squirrel Hill district, gave Magistrate John H. Staley an argument on the law and its enforcement when arraigned today and was fined $25. The other 10 offenders were discharged. The arrests were made when residents complained that the Sunday morning selling went beyond 10 oclock.

Simonson wanted to know why the crusade excepted drug stores and others selling on Sunday. The magistrate explained that drug stores were permitted to remain open to dispense medical necessities and that some of the druggists cheated and sold ice cream. It was explained that a city ordinance fixed the closing time at 10 o'clock on milk dealers and those handling necessities. Simonson said that many others were open on Sunday and he thought certain persons were being singled out.

Included in those arrested were two butchers and one hair dresser. The defendants denied selling beyond the hour and promised to obey the law. While some of the shops were open after the hour set for closing, the proprietors explained they were cleaning up or counting up their receipts. Simonson said he had no objection to compliance with the law, provided it was made effective against all his competitors.

ONE BURNED IN GARAGE FIRE

A man was burned seriously and two automobiles were badly damaged early today when fire destroyed a garage in the rear of 226 Edith street, Duquesne Heights. The injured man is Robert Dugan, of 232 Seward street.

Dugan is reported to have struck a match as he was placing his machine in the garage. The match ignited gasoline on the floor of the garage. He was burned in getting his machine outside. The other car was owned by George S. Truesch, of 244 Shaler street. Damage was estimated at $1,000.

TRUCK KNOCKS DRIVER OFF WAGON; HEAD CUT

Jacob Rosenthal, 55, junk dealer, of 131 Erin street, was knocked from his wagon at Oakwood street and Inglenook place today, and suffered cuts on the head which required seven stitches to close. A truck of the Eastwood Cleaning Company, 8100 Frankstown avenue, driven by Archie Davis, 19, of 1017 Hallam street, collided with Rosenthal's wagon.

ELEANOR ROSE

Eleanor Rose, 20, 2 Edith place, found the heat oppressive early this morning and sat up to read. About 3 o'clock noise attracted her to the window. Two men were breaking into Linden Pharmacy, 3274 Ward street. She screamed. The robbers fled and police have found no further traces.

TWO NABBED AS DRIVE ON LOTTERIES GOES ON

Hill district police continued their drive against lotteries, and last night arrested two young men, alleged "salesmen." The youths, Samuel Ambrose, 24, of 919 Wylie avenue, and Dominick DeSanda, of 69 Congress street, will be arraigned today in Central Police Court. They were taken into custody by city detectives after they were said to have sold a ticket to Jess Groves, 53, of 717 Wylie avenue.

HIT-RUN CAR STOLEN, ACCUSED OWNER SAYS

OIL CITY, Pa., Aug. 8.—(AP.)—Frank O'Day, Jr., well known here, entered a plea of not guilty yesterday to charges of failing to stop and render assistance after an automobile he was alleged to have been driving struck a pedestrian. Benjamin Perry, who was struck, is a patient in the Oil City Hospital, expected to recover. O'Day asserts the car had been stolen and that he was not at the wheel.

Gene May Wed Pgh. Heiress

the official announcement of the reported coming marriage, the future bride was said to be "in hiding" today from the eyes of the curious.

Though the former champion had been "keeping company" with Miss Lauder for two years, marriage, as the cause of his retirement from the ring, was a secret until published by the New York Evening Journal yesterday.

Close friends of Miss Lauder said she is preparing her trousseau for her marriage in her ancestral home in Dunfermline, Scotland, for which she will sail on August 25.

Edward Dewing, brother-in-law of Miss Lauder, said that Tunney was at the Lauder camp in Maine, but an early impending marriage was news to him.

As soon as he arrives in Europe, Gene will go to Ireland to attend the "Irish Olympics," as guest of the Irish Republic, after which he is expected to visit Scotland and there become the husband of the girl whose grandfather was a brother-in-law and business associate of Andrew Carnegie in the Carnegie Steel Company, and who laid the foundation of the fortune which the girl has today and which is estimated at $50,000,000.

Josephine Lauder is "Polly" to all her friends and neighbors who watched her grow up on the family estate, "Tighnabruaich," in Rock Ridge, Greenwich, Conn. The family came to Greenwich 22 years ago from Pittsburgh, and one year later Josephine was born. Her home is on an estate of more than 90 acres, and is one of the show places in Greenwich.

"LOVE AT FIRST SIGHT"

She met the former champion, just before he won the world heavyweight championship from Jack Dempsey in 1926, through Sam Pryor, a boyhood chum of Gene's and who is also a resident of Greenwich.

Their first meeting resulted in a right under Gene's heart from Dan Cupid.

A reporter paying a visit to Greenwich, noticed that the Lauder home is being prepared for the winter, and a section of the back porch already contains athletic equipment and a punching bag which may be for the use of Josephine's brother, George III, who is 18 and will be off to college in the winter. Then again the equipment may be there for the use of the former champion who is a "bear" on keeping in condition.

Miss Lauder is tall and athletic and beautiful. She is fond of all sports and her father, George Lauder, Jr., who died 12 years ago, was a prominent yachtsman.

In connection with the reported Tunney-Lauder romance it was recalled that when Tunney defeated Jack Dempsey at Chicago he leaned over the ropes to the microphone and said he wanted to give his best wishes to the radio audience, especially to "my friends in Greenwich, Conn."

Missouri Rejects Reed

International News Service.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 8.—Missouri Democrats turned thumbs down on United States Senator James A. Reed, it was apparent here today on the basis of returns from yesterday's primary elections, and the prohibition question raised by the veteran Senator is not an issue.

The Missouri Democrats have nominated Charles M. Hay, St. Louis, as their candidate for the U. S. senatorship by a vote of landslide proportions over his opponent, James A. Collet of Salisbury, who was supported by Reed. But they turned around and nominated Francis M. Wilson, a wet, as their candidate for governor by an even larger majority than that given Hay.

On the Republican ticket, the nomination for U. S. senator still was in doubt, with Roscoe Patterson slightly ahead of his nearest opponent, David M. Proctor, of Kansas City, both drys.

Henry S. Caulfield, St. Louis, apparently had won the Republican nomination for governor from his closest opponent, Phil A. Bennett, lieutenant governor.

In the governorship race, Francis M. Wilson, Democrat, had a vote of 175,126 in 2,571 precincts out of 4,135, giving him a plurality of 124,462 over his nearest opponent. The Republicans nominated Caulfield by a vote of 110,571 votes over Bennett's total of 78,916, in 2,421 precincts out of 4,135.

TWO FLIERS DIE IN TAILSPIN

CINCINNATI, O., Aug. 8.—Two men were killed when an airplane went into a tailspin and crashed on the outskirts of the city today. They were Wendell Pavey, 42, of Cincinnati, the pilot and J. L. Beviss, 34, of Hamilton, O.

They had been warned of the danger of attempting to fly here from Akron, O., because of heavy fog, it was reported. Pavey flew in the World War.

Pittsburgh As Others See Us

"Pittsburgh has a very special place in my heart, for it was one of the first cities in which I sang after my debut as a regular prima donna."

—ROSA PONSELLE

ROSA PONSELLE

ROSA MELBA PONSELLE, dramatic soprano, was born in Meriden, Conn., and educated in public schools and under private tutors. Took vocal lessons for six months and joined the Metropolitan Opera Company. She was the first American to make her debut in a leading role with Caruso. Her sister, Carmela Ponselle, is also a gifted singer. Lives in New York City.

Pittsburgh has a very special place in my heart, for it was one of the first cities in which I sang after my debut as a regular prima donna. One can readily understand how very keenly the beginner senses the reaction of her public and I can honestly still recall the thrill I received from those friendly audiences who certainly inspired me with the desire to go on and do better and better, so as to merit their continued approval. I get more applause and many more expressions of appreciation of my work now-a-days, but the kindly spirit of the early day audiences will never be blotted out of my memory.

What artist could fail to be thrilled by the enormous and enthusiastic audiences which Pittsburgh turns out to greet the visiting musicians at Syria Mosque?

I am told that the concert calendars of Pittsburgh constantly show crowded schedules in Carnegie Hall and the Syria Mosque, with additional concerts given at the Y. M. H. A., at the Pittsburgh Institute and in various other buildings—all of which certainly speaks eloquently for the part that music takes in the cultural life of your city.

HERBERT HOOVER

When Herbert Hoover, in Stanford University stadium Saturday before thousands and thousands of people, is "surprised" upon notification of his nomination as Republican presidential candidate, he will answer in fitting fashion. Traditionally, he must talk for a long, long time. Above, he finishes the address—that is, finishes writing it. More than 80,000 are expected to be in the stadium.

DRIVES AUTO INTO POLE BUT FAILS TO SAVE BOY

Struck by an automobile at Charles street and Irwin avenue late yesterday, Robert Carpenter, 12, of 71 Strauss street, suffered a fractured right leg and bruises. He was taken to the Presbyterian Hospital by the driver, Charles Winterhafer, 28, of 235 Single street, Millvale. Winterhafer damaged his automobile when he drove it against a pole in an attempt to avoid striking the boy.

BOY SCOUTS

Boy Scouts in their third week encamped at Camp Umbstaetter, near Ambridge, produced "Treasure Island," Robert Louis Stevenson's book beloved by boys, as an outdoor pageant. Two dozen took parts. Here Otto Renner as "Capt. Smollett" crosses cutlasses with Tom Fox as Israel Hands, one of the mut' s Pirates.

Is it necessary to delve back into "Treasure Island" to tell you what this scene is? Here the bold, bad, battle-scarred buccaneers swarm over the gunwales of the treasure ship and lock in mortal combat with the pitifully small band of defenders. OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

DADDY GETS A MODERN SLANT

By EVANGELINE WEIR

"I AM going to marry Daddy to the first efficient and understanding woman I find willing to accept the great responsibility," Ruth Miller told her cousin. "He has pre-war virtues, manners and mind; I am modern with my hand on the wheel ready for the next adventure, be it life or death. His speed is 15 miles an hour while mine is a mile a minute. I cannot stand it much longer."

"Uncle Amos is good to you," Cousin Anne reproved.

"His special brands of goodness are not to my taste. I do not mean to be unkind or even disrespectful to Daddy, but his old-world fashions and ideas almost drive me mad. He doesn't approve of knees or legs—wants me to add half a dozen inches to my skirts. He acts as if every boy was a dangerous companion."

Cousin Anne was modern, but old enough to understand clearly how Ruth's manner must jar her conservative father.

"There are a number of attractive widows and spinsters in the town," she suggested.

"They are too modern for Daddy. I have gone over the entire list and failed to find a single suitable stepmama."

"Have you considered the photograph on his desk?" Anne asked with a wicked smile. She knew that it was one of the trials of Ruth's young life. Her father had been engaged to the girl in his youth and held her up continually as a model to his restless, swift-moving daughter.

Ruth ran away and returned with the picture which she began to criticize mercilessly.

Anne studied the picture closely.

"Judy Steele! Judy Steele!" she repeated. "Miss Judith Steele! can it be possible? Why she—she—she has degenerated," Anne managed between fits of mirth. "Her hair and skirt are both bobbed now. What a joke that is on your father, Ruth."

Ruth laughed merrily.

"Daddy will never recover from the blow. His idol has feet of clay, after all."

"I met her in Washington," Anne explained. "She told me she went to school with uncle and mother. If her mind is as modern as her gowns and hats, she is quite up-to-date. She is a charming woman and looks young enough to be my sister."

Ruth jumped up and danced a Highland Fling.

"I shall cultivate Miss Judith. She is just the woman to convert Daddy."

So one morning Miss Judith Steele had a caller; a pretty girl who made a little gurgling sound in her throat as she looked at Daddy's old sweetheart. As she waited for her to make known her errand, Ruth said the very thing she did not mean to say.

"You look younger now than on your old photograph which stands on my Daddy's desk."

"Is that a compliment you're paying, child?" Judith asked, suspiciously.

Then Ruth blundered through an apology which showed a complete lack of tact.

Judith smiled tolerantly.

"Be a good sport and tell me just why you came here. I'll meet you half way if you're honest."

Ruth, trusting her now, told all of her troubles and incidentally her plans. When she had finished, Miss Judith, true to her promise, related why she had not married her father. She had loved him, yes, but she had broken the engagement because she wanted a fling at a career before she settled down.

"Daddy is a handsome man and a charming one when he forgets how his generation acted," Ruth apologized.

Miss Judith looked at the pretty girl and smiled in sympathy.

"Perhaps it would help him to move along to see how far behind I have left the old things he counts so important. Would you care to bring him to call on me?" she added thoughtfully.

"You are a dear," said Ruth. "I hope you'll marry Daddy."

"I'll look your Daddy over before I make any promise," Miss Judith said with dancing eyes. "We used to quarrel disgracefully."

The following day, Ruth coaxed her father to go with her to his boyhood home, and drove her car to an old Colonial house at the end of the village.

"It is the old Steele property," Miller told her. "It has been closed for years while Judy was abroad. Why are you stopping here?"

"To call on her young cousin," Ruth said, with dancing eyes. "She is a lovely girl; quite superior to your Judy person. Get out, Daddy, you are going with me."

Amos Miller did not recognize his old sweetheart in the radiant, youthful woman who met them in the old room he remembered so well.

"It is very dull of you, Daddy, not to recognize Miss Steele, whose photograph stands on your desk," Ruth laughed.

"You look very young, Judy," Amos Miller said as he gazed at the woman critically.

"And I feel younger than I look, Amos. Every time I cut an inch off my skirts, I take a year off my age."

"You have cut your beautiful hair, too, Judy," he said disconsolately.

"Can't buy a smart hat otherwise," she replied easily.

Ruth made an excuse to go into town, and Amos Miller turned to Miss Steele.

"Judy, I would not believe this if I hadn't seen it with my own eyes. I have held you up continually to my young daughter as an example of what a modest womanly woman should be."

"I do not thank you for spoiling my reputation," she retorted. "I laugh when I think of my skirts sweeping the floor and my hair down to my knees. Yesterday has passed for me. I am quite proud of my appearance."

"Judith is making Daddy entirely over," Ruth confided to her cousin a month later.

"I see there's a new photograph of Miss Judith on Uncle's desk," Anne remarked.

"Anne, I am afraid she is just flirting with him—for my sake. I can't permit her to trifle with Dad. He loves her—but she—"

"Don't worry, Ruth," said Anne wisely. "She is one Victorian, who, as we moderns say, "knows her groceries."

"Rinso is the easiest way to wash clothes I ever heard of! I pity women who still use the old way. "Why, all you do is soak your clothes in the rich, creamy Rinso suds for a while, and all the ground-in dirt loosens right out so you don't have to do any hard rubbing.

"Just soaking gets my wash whiter than if I had spent hours scrubbing and boiling it. And that saves wear on the clothes, too.

"I find that Rinso goes farther than other soaps. That's because it makes our hard water so soft and sudsy."

TRAFFORD TYPHOID BLAMED ON WATER DRINKING AT PLAY

TRAFFORD CITY, Pa., Aug. 8.—(AP.)—Eleven children in one section of Trafford City are sufferers from typhoid fever, believed to have been contracted wheny they dammed up a stream from a spring and drank some of the water after placing it in bottles while at play.

A twelfth victim of the disease is an adult.

Samples of the water have been sent to the State Department of Health at Harrisburg for analysis, but a report has not yet been received by the local health board.

Red Cross nurses from the Trafford City chapter are caring for the children. In some families as many as three children are sufferers.

HOT WEATHER CURTAILS OHIO MILL OUTPUT

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Aug. 8.—Continued hot weather is cutting into output of hot mills, some mills encountering difficulty in assembling full crews. The Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company has received an order for 25,000 tons of large sized steel tubing placed by the Consolidated Gas and Utilities Company for a line from Amarillo, Tex., to Enid, Okla. It is estimated the pipe will cost $2,000,000.

There is also a gift of $3 sent in by Eva M. Conrad.

Another group of Squirrel Hill children, all aged from 6 to 10 years, has added $2.75 to the fund. The youngsters all live in Raleigh street, and they include Milly Cohen, Grace Carey, Walter Averman, Helen Magison and Blanche Dingfelder.

The Sun-Telegraph Fifteen Cent Pattern

A DAINTY MORNING FROCK

Cotton print in green and white was selected for this design, with binding of green organdy, for a finish. One could also combine two colors in this model, or plain and figured material.

The pattern is cut in 4 sizes: small, 34-36; medium, 38-40; large, 42-44; extra large, 46-48 inches bust measure. To make the frock for a medium size as illustrated will require 3¼ yards of 36-inch material together with 3⅜ yards of narrow bias binding, and ¼ yard 27 inches wide of contrasting material for facing on the belt. The width of the frock at the lower edge with plaits extended is 1¾ yards.

COUPON.

This pattern will be sent on receipt of 15 cents (silver or 2c and 1c stamps). Make number, name, address, etc., plain. Send to Pattern Department, The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa.

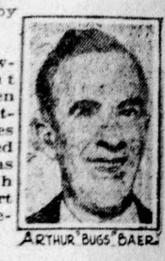
BUGS BAER Says

FOLLOWING several distinguished examples of this year we realize that a man can always make himself popular by retiring.



ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

Tunney showed excellent footwork when he danced outside the ropes and announced himself as through with the manly art of selfish defense.

His battering of Tom Heeney was no more of a fight than a Texas steer puts up in the abbatoirs of Kansas City. It was just as equal a contest as one between a sheet of tanglefoot and a fly. It was a slaughter, and Mr. Tunney carried the cleaver and wore the spotted apron.

Tunney's retirement brings Jack Dempsey back again under the gold and purple peacock fan. But does Jack want to fight again?

Wrap a veiled ear around Dempsey's statement. My main object now is to be a perfect husband and the father of a family.

Jack makes that statement from the depths of pardonable ignorance. It is easier for a rich man to go through the eye of a camel than it is to be a perfect husband and the daddy of a herd.

It is far easier to please one million fans by slugging Carpentier on the snoot than it is to please one wife coming home at three in the morning, or by coming home at all.

There may be such an institution as a perfect husband. But if there is, he is still hanging by his rear feet in an African palm tree.

There will never be a perfect husband chosen by popular vote because a wife and child constitute a hostile majority.

When the lost city of Atlantis is discovered there may be a perfect husband in the third house from the corner. When the highest peak of Tibet is surmounted by a rescuing expedition there may be a perfect husband perched on the top subsisting on eagle feathers and snow balls. But if he is a perfect husband he will refuse to be rescued.

Dempsey lost his last two fights in the ring. But think of how many are lost by a perfect husband. We advise Jack to go back to the ring and fight until his cauliflower ears are so big they will have to be harvested in the fall.

WILLYS FILM COMING SOON

With visual education by means of motion picture films now recognized as one of the most interesting and impressive means of clearly depicting a subject, unusual interest is attached to the announcement made here today that a feature picture showing the operation of one of the largest industrial plants in the world would be shown on August 13 at the Rea-Seagert Company salesroom, 5800 Baum boulevard.

The film is "The Silent Knight." It shows the building of a Willys-Knight Six through its every operation, from the time the raw material is sorted in the material yards until the finished car leaves the plant under its own power. The film was made primarily as a record of the manufacturing processes employed by Willys-Overland, but when it was completed it was found to be of such a compelling interest that the company decided to show it publicly.

In addition to showing the methods of operation in the production of a finished motor car, the picture also shows its use throughout the world. Through the courtesy of Martin Johnson, famous African explorer, some excellent "shots" from his feature film, "Simba," are used. These depict the trials of a motor car in the wilds of Africa.

No admission fee is to be charged to see this picture. Admission, however, will be by card, and these may be secured by calling at the show rooms of Rea-Seagert Company.

RECORD BREAKING EASY SAYS 'CANNONBALL' BAKER

It's easy to break records with the new Franklin Airman to hear the man who breaks them talk.

"Cannonball" Baker, famous cross-country racer, is the man. Heretofore he has been able to break records almost at will with any kind of automobile placed in his hands, but last night at a banquet of Franklin dealers in the Pittsburgh Athletic Association, this same record-breaker told how, in his estimation, there is only one car for this purpose.

He praised the new airman in every detail. He did more than praise it—he lauded it and gave the impression that he idolizes the car. Yes, even worships it!

As to record breaking—Baker graphically told how he lowered the coast-to-coast round trip by 10 hours and 36 minutes last June with plenty of time to spare and related his more recent exploit on Lookout Mountain last Saturday, again setting a new low mark for mountain climbing. Both of these feats were accomplished with the new Franklin, chosen by this premier road daredevil following experimenting with the car through his own volition.

Dealers from all parts of this district attended the banquet, which was given by the McKinley-Gregg Auto Company, 447 N. Craig street, distributors. More than 200 men were in attendance and after a diversified program of entertainment, they were treated to the privilege of hearing Baker speak.

Baker, since his record-breaking exploits with the new Airman, has joined the factory staff of the Franklin Motor Car Company as chief tester.

PGH. MOTOR CLUB'S PICNIC SATURDAY

A crowd of 2,000 is expected at the annual picnic of the Pittsburgh Motor Club at Hill Grove, in Allegheny South Park. According to C. H. Roth, secretary of the club, there will be 12 athletic events, a ball game, quoits matches and dancing free between 7 and 10 p. m. One hundred and fifty prizes have been donated for use in the athletic events and contests. The day will feature a "caravan" of members, leaving Water street at Wood street, at 2 p. m.

ROSEDALE FIREMEN TO PICNIC AUG. 18

The annual Rosedale Volunteer Firemen's picnic will be held August 18, at Rosedale Beach. An attractive program of sports and entertainment has been arranged by the committee in charge, which includes M. M. Alcorn, C. W. Gernert, E. M. Evans and J. E. Walters.

DOG RESCUES FARMER ATTACKED BY BULL

WILMOT, O., Aug. 8.—Lee Schnitzer, farmer, residing east of Wilmot, suffered several broken ribs before his dog rescued him from a bull that trampled him.

SLOW TRAFFIC CONGESTION DANGEROUS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—There is a nation-wide tendency on the part of the states to liberalize speed limits and to judge the recklessness of the driver on the facts in the case, rather than on the mere question of overstepping a speed limit at the time of an accident.

This statement was issued at national headquarters of the American Automobile Association, based on a survey of speed limits in each of the 48 states and the District of Columbia, which shows that within the past three years a total of 23 states have eliminated obsolete speed limits.

SLOW TRAFFIC MENACE

The national motoring body points out that highway experts, jurists and traffic authorities throughout the country are coming to realize, after careful investigation, that crowded conditions caused by slow-moving traffic contribute more to the appalling number of accidents on the highways than the efficiently handled automobile moving at a fair rate of speed.

"Move on" seems to be the watchword on the highways in the open country, and this, together with the campaign to eliminate speed traps and roadside courts, has done much to facilitate the movement of the ever-increasing number of automobiles.

The A. A. A. says it has been conclusively shown that the states having speed laws that allow the motorist to "move on" have contributed less to the accident list than those with obsolete regulations.

SPEED LIMITS RAISED

"A total of 23 states have increased the speed laws within the past three years," according to the A. A. A., "and highway authorities in all of these commonwealths have been pleased with the results attained in moving traffic with safety. These states are:

"Alabama, 30 to 45 miles; Arizona, 20 to 35 miles; Connecticut, 30 miles to 'proper and careful operation, Florida, 30 to 45 miles; Georgia, 30 to 40 miles; Idaho, 30 to 35 miles; Indiana, 25 to 40 miles; Iowa, 25 to 40 miles; Kentucky, 30 to 40 miles; Maryland, 25 to 40 miles; Michigan, 35 to 'reasonable and proper'; New Hampshire, 25 to 35 miles; New Jersey, 30 to 35 miles; North Carolina, 30 to 45 miles; North Dakota, 30 to 35 miles; Oregon, 30 to 35 miles; Pennsylvania, 30 to 35 miles; Rhode Island, 25 to 35 miles; South Carolina, 35 to 45 miles; Tennessee, 20 to 30 miles; Vermont, 25 to 30 miles; Virginia, 30 to 35 miles, and Washington, 30 to 40 miles."

The A. A. A. survey shows that the speed limit was increased by specific legislative action during the 1927 sessions of the state Legislatures in at least 10 states, and that itw ill be considered in numerous others at approaching sessions of the legislative bodies.

JUDGE ON FACTS

The statement by the national motoring body continues:

"In the first place, there has been a very notable development in the tendency to divorce speed and recklessness and to judge the recklessness of the driver on the facts in the case and the situation confronting him, rather than on the mere question as to whether or not he was overstepping a speed limit at the time of the accident.

"Secondly, there was a very marked increase of opinion in favor of minimum speed laws, this thought being advanced by state officials who have observed over a long period of time that many accidents are due to people taking a chance in getting out of the line of slow-moving traffic. While, of course, the practice of leaving the line always involves serious hazards, experience is driving home the fact that vehicles moving at an unnecessarily slow rate are proving one of the worst nuisances on the road today."

DODGE POWER EXCELS NIAGARA

An avalanche of mobile horsepower 78 times greater than power generated at Niagara Falls has been turned out by Dodge Brothers' Corporation since the first car rolled off the assembly line, November 14, 1914, according to figures compiled by engineers of the company. In nearly 14 years of the company's automotive building, approximately 2,140,000 cars have been turned out.

The total rated horsepower of Niagara Falls power plants is estimated at 1,085,000, due to treaty limitations, while all cars built by Dodge Brothers represents a total potential horsepower rating of approximately 85,000,000.

Engineers estimate that if all Dodge cars could be harnessed in a single unit, it would be possible for them to do as much work in one day as the Niagara Falls power plants can do in two and one-half months.

BULLET-PROOF TIRES FOUND

Automobile tires are not generally supposed to be puncture-proof. Much less are they supposed to be bullet-proof, but tire engineers at Akron are displaying a small-sized four-ply tire in which two 32-caliber bullets are imbedded, without having gone through the tire. The bullet-laden tire is a total mystery. How or why two bullets became imbedded in the four plys of carcass fabric will probably forever remain a mystery.

The engineers say that in these days of more or less shooting, while traveling at high speeds by persons following precarious occupations, bullet-imbedded tires are not uncommon. Recently a tire was returned to a factory at Akron with a large steel-jacketed bullet imbedded in the carcass. This hard sharp-nosed projectile had penetrated the tire between the rubber sidewall and the carcass and skimmed between the sidewall and carcass to the bead on the other side of the tire without puncturing it.

While the rapid revolutions of the tire and the angle from which the bullet is fired are factors that help to prevent the hot lead from going through the tire into the tube, the engineers say that there is a surprisingly great power of resistance in the combination of rubber and cotton cords that make a tire. The mystery tire received one of the bullets directly from the side. Its course was straight, indicating that it had not entered the tire from an angle. Both in the rubber sidewall and in the cord carcass the hole closed up until it could scarcely be seen. This bullet ended its speeding career in the last layer of fabric against the tube. Almost through, but not quite.

How To Be Beautiful by Maria Jeritza

Bathing-Beach Charm.

AUGUST days find the bathing beaches crowded with fair swimmers and with others equally fair, in suits more ornamental than practical. The latter class are usually shocked if they happen to wet their toes at the water's edge. All, however, are having a good time in their own way.

MARIA JERITZA

If you adopt common-sense measures and safeguards, these outings should prove a boon to your beauty and healthful charm, otherwise they may prove decidedly detrimental to both health and appearance. Within easy access of the average bathing beach is the stand of the vendor of cold drinks, fruits and light refreshments, including "hot dogs." Be a little careful when you decide to indulge in these refreshments and choose wisely.

As a famous physician counsels: "Eat all you need in hot weather, but do not eat truck." He might well have added: "Do not go in the water less than an hour and a half after eating." "Truck" in this case, includes fruit rinds, seeds and skins, green and overripe fruit, milk from open containers, rich bonbons and quantities of heavy meat sandwiches. In other words, use discretion in the food you put into your stomach while you bask in the hot sun or shortly before going in the water.

Fresh fruit drinks are delicious, including lemonade, limeade, orangeade and grape juice. Butter milk is good. Pure milk in the form of milk-shake and frosted chocolate or cold chocolate with whipped cream is nourishing, digestable and delicious. Iced drinks should, however, be taken in moderation and sipped slowly. Cold jellied soup, a salad and a fruit dessert make a delightful hot-weather meal, which should build health and beauty.

You may feel tempted to lounge in your bathing suit in the hot sun. But blisters acquired in this way will not add to your comfort, charm of disposition or appearance, next day.

Above all, do not enter the water while you are overheated. Lie about, first, in the shade and cool off. Twenty minutes is long enough for the average person to remain in the water. If you stay in longer blue lips and shriveled skin will indicate that you are chilled and exhausted and far from the lovely lady you would like to be.

A bathing suit a few inches longer than fashion requires, and in one dark color save for possibly a striped border, will prove flattering to the woman whose legs are not symmetrical or whose weight is too much.

Clean sand and fresh air are as good for the sparkle in your eyes, as the swim itself, so enjoy a good air bath in your suit before and after your swim. Always rinse your hair well afterward, unless it has been protected with a rubber cap. Salt water remaining in the hair is harmful.

Before and after exposure to hot sunshine, rub olive oil, cocoanut oil or nourishing cold cream into your skin. The following lotion helps bleach freckles, when applied from time to time on absorbent cotton:

Slices of one cucumber.
Sweet milk, one pint.

You can if you will, make the season for open air bathing, a priceless aid to your health, charm and beauty.

New Talking Movie Schedule Moves William C. De Mille to Paramount to Direct Work

By REGINA CREWE

(Copyright, 1928, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 8.

WILLIAM C. DE MILLE has signed with Paramount for a tremendously important position. It places him at the helm of this mighty company's talking picture production. And there is probably no man in the country better fitted to take advantage of the revolutionary situation caused by the advent of sound in the silent drama.

Before putting in 14 years in the motion picture industry, De Mille spent an identical period of time in close association with the stage. Both he and his brother, Cecil, were proteges of David Belasco. Mr. De Mille is thoroughly familiar with every detail of stage craft as well as all the ramifications of screen technic. Before his entrance into motion pictures, he gained fame as a playwright of the first magnitude. Among other contributions to American dramatic art he contributed such plays as "Strongheart," "The Warrens of Virginia" and a host of others.

He has just completed his last two Pathe pictures, "Tenth Avenue," and "Craig's Wife." They probably represent his final effort in the realm of silent drama. Mr. De Mille believes that the sound picture is here to stay, and that it will cause to be developed a brand new directorial technic. This, he says, will draw something from the stage and something from the screen, but will be virtually different from either. The director says that his greatest thrill comes with the opportunity to be twice a pioneer in the industry. He was one of the very first to elavate the silent screen to its present position. And he will now be one of the "Forty-niners" of sound films. He has just celebrated his fiftieth birthday and he regards the new assignment as the finest gift possible for him to receive.

Speaking of the famous De Mille brothers, Cecil B. De Mille is all set on his first story for Metro. No one will even whisper the title, but it is to be a modern drama. For the time being "Silk," "The Fall of Rome" and "The Mysterious Island" have been laid aside. It is probable, however, that they will eventually be produced.

I told you recently that I believed they would corral Ben Lyon for the air picture, "The Air Legion." I was right. Ben has signed. Little new mustache and all.

Herbert Brenon speaks right up in meetin' to say that Louise Dresser is his first and foremost choice for the title role in "Lummox." But, he adds, there are others. Which may be a hint to Miss Dresser not to raise the ante too greatly. Mr. Brennon has about three more weeks' work on "Rescue." Then a trip to New York. Then back on the job again. "Rescue," by the way, is to have a dialog sequence. The director doesn't cheer loudly for the "Squeakies"—but, everybody's doin' it.

Snooping around Hollywood for news the other midnight, whom did I meet, alone and all forlorn, but Helen Ferguson waiting for some one. The some one was husband Bill Russell. Helen had finished rehearsal for her stage play, "Lombardi, Ltd.," before the hour Bill was to call. She didn't dare leave the spot for fear of missing him, so bought a hot dog and a bottle of pop for herself and the show's ingenue, and they both sat on the theater steps—waiting. Dorothy Dwan also has been stolen from the screen for this revival of Leo Carillo's show.

Table glimpses at the "Momart"—Got a shock at seeing Tom Mix in a conservative blue jacket and the usual Hollywood regalia of white flannel trousers. Wanted to peek under the table to see if Tom had his spurs on. But lacked the courage.

Mrs. Ona Brown and Mrs. Finis Fox were busy showing a sheaf of photos of their recent airplane trip, upon which Dolores Del Rio was one of a dozen girls to be thrilled.

Johnny Hines was talking with a terribly business-like looking person at another table. He must have owned a chain of theaters.

Lewis Stone's Rolls passed the window containing a gorgeous blonde, and, of course, Lewis. Maybe it was niece—maybe not.

Ronald Colman, Hollywood's "Mystery Man," generally considered the most aloof, detached and distant of the movie stars, is really a fine mixer—if you get what I mean. Ronald has a half dozen new suits and wants a picture to fit the "scenery."

Raoul Walsh made page one in the local papers when he flew to Mexico to be married.

NOTED COMEDY IN BILLS

The courtroom scene in "Lightnin'," to be presented by the George Sharp Players in the Pitt next week, showing the Reno divorce mill in full operation, is the high spot of the play. Gus Forbes will be seen as "Lightnin'" Bill Jones.

"Little Miss Bluebeard," which the Nixon Players will present in the Nixon next week, will be remembered as Irene Bordoni's songplay, written by Avery Hopwood, who adapted it from a Hungarian comedy by Gabriel Dregeley. Harry Bannister and Marguerite Merrill will have the leading roles.

DON'T MISS JIGGS— MAGGIE NEVER DID!

A rolling pin is to Maggie what a baseball bat is to Babe Ruth, or a mashie to Bobby Jones. She wielded it well and willingly—but it didn't have much effect on Jiggs. He just high-hatted her and went on enjoying life.

Don't miss Jiggs—Maggie never did!

WHAT'S ON THE AIR

A FAREWELL and good-luck reception to Commander Byrd will be one of the air features tonight. This program, an NBC broadcast, will be heard over WCAE at 8 o'clock. Among the speakers will be Commander Byrd; Bernt Balchen, former lieutenant in the Norwegian army, who was Byrd's chief aide on his Polar flight; Capt. Fred C. Melville, master of Byrd's base ship, and "Smiling Tom" Mulroy.

The Gilbert and Sullivan operas also will be on the air. The National Light Opera Company will broadcast "Pirates of Penzance" at 10:30 o'clock over WCAE and associated NBC stations. The Columbia System, during the Kolster hour at 10 o'clock, will present "Iolanthe." WJAS will be in the hookup.

Jessica Dragonette, NBC prima donna, will resume her place in the Philco hour program at 9 o'clock tonight, following a vacation. She will have a lead role in "The Debutante," a Victor Herbert operetta. It will be heard over KDKA.

Songs from the popular realm go to make up the program to be broadcast by the Maytag Ramblers and soloists over KDKA at 10:00 o'clock. The orchestra will open the program with "There Was Once an Owl." In response to numerous requests, the baritone will sing "The Winding Road. The tenor will sing "Together."

Songs of yesterday, which still retain their popularity, will be heard during the Power Period over KDKA at 10:30 o'clock. The quartet will open the program singing "Two Little Girls in Blue." Other numbers will be "Lass With a Delicate Air," "Grandfather's Clock," "Scotch Lassie Jean," "Sweet Genevieve," 'I Sing Because' I Love to Sing" and "The Lost Chord."

BYRD HOPS OFF!

The most unusual, dramatic hour your radio has ever brought into your home.

Hear Commander Richard E. Byrd, America's greatest explorer, tell about his coming South Pole expedition. Hear Bernt Balchen, his pilot. Hear Captain Melville, "Smiling Tom" Mulroy, Chief Engineer, and Richard E. Brophy.

This program will be broadcast from WEAF New York at 8 P.M. Daylight Saving Time (7 P.M. Standard Time) and rebroadcast from 19 other stations comprising the National Broadcasting Company's Red Network. See local station announcement in this paper.

The program is given by the Tide Water Oil Company in honor of the fact that Commander Byrd chose THE NEW VEEDOL motor oil to lubricate his planes, snow tractors and all motor equipment.

2 THUGS BEAT POLICEMAN

Attacked by two men who struck him with knucklers early today while walking his beat in Gironde street near Island avenue, North Side, Patrolman Earnest Whitworth of the Woods Run Police Station was severely beaten. The patrolman is confined to his home where he was taken after being treated at St. John's Hospital.

Whitworth was surprised by the two thugs, who leaped upon him from an alleyway. The officer fought but was beaten to the ground and left in a dazed condition by the men who fled.

HAWAIIANS EXONERATED FOR STYLES OF MUSIC

Music that Americans call Hawaiian is not that, and the ukulele is not a Hawaiian invention, declared Harry W. Willock, Pittsburgh retired business man, yesterday, in an address before the members of the Credo Club of the Credit Association of Western Pennsylvania, in the first of a series of four talks he will make on "The Peoples of the Pacific." He contended that a German musician was responsible for the type of music called Hawaiian, the same being true of the ukulele. Mr. Willock, who recently made a trip to Hawaii, says the people are clamoring for statehood. He declared that the country is prosperous because of the protection of the American tariff, 95 per cent of the island's exports being sugar and pineapples.

RECEIVERS TO OPEN BELL PITS

Operation of the Carnegie Coal Company mines, one of the John A. Bell properties, now in the hands of receivers, is assured as the result of the signing of an order by Federal Judge F. P. Schoonmaker today authorizing the receivers to borrow $153,777.19. With the strike in this district virtually at an end and the outlook in the industry better than for some time, the receivers plan for opening some of the mines which can be operated economically.

W. M. Wilshire and C. C. McGregor, receivers, petitioned the court for permission to borrow money to pay taxes, and operate mines as the receivers deem advisable. The mines have been closed since the expiration of the Jacksonville agreement.

The petition sets forth that the condition of the industry and the market for coal have so far improved that it is believed the receivers can operate to advantage, and earn sufficient above operating expenses to make payment on the sinking fund and meet other expenses of the receivership. The money is to be borrowed from a committee constituted under the Carnegie Coal Company's first mortgage bondholders' agreement. The committee is to be paid in whole or part out of the first net proceeds, if any, with interest at 6 per cent.

STEEL SHIPPERS GET CUT

Local iron and steel shippers will be granted commodity freight rates on shipments to many points instead of having to pay the full class rates as is now being done, if the Interstate Commerce Commission approves recommendations of Examiners H. C. Faul and C. M. Bardwell, whose report containing the recommendations was made public yesterday after being summarized by the traffic division of the Chamber of Commerce.

The traffic division summarization indicates that this advantage, if made possible, will be followed by many other changes in rates throughout the territory east of the Mississippi and north of the Ohio. Under the proposed changes every producing point would have to stand on its own merits and the chief benefit here would be the gaining of commodity rates.

HOW LEAK BALKED POLES

By MAJ. LOUIS IDZIKOWSKI,

Commander of the Airplane Marszalek Pilsudski on Her Attempted Trans-Atlantic Flight.

(Copyright, 1928, by the King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

OPORTO, Portugal, Aug. 8.—Our decision to start was made about noon Thursday when we got favorable weather reports. These indicated that we would have a northwest wind as far as the Azores and from that time on a side wind. In the evening of that day came further word from the meteorological bureau confirming the earlier reports on the weather. These atmospheric conditions were better than any since we had begun waiting for a proper time to start.

Incidentally, the forecast on which we based our decision to start was fulfilled as far as we went. They were so excellent that at the time we were forced to alight we still had enough fuel for 32 hours more of flying.

CONFIDENT OF PLANE

There was in our minds never a thought that our plane could fail. We had flown it 150 hours and we had made one endurance test of 32 hours. Not a defect in construction or operation did we discover in this time.

For safety, in case of mishap, we had valves for dumping the fuel in a few seconds ad a rubber boat on which we could leave the plane if it failed to float.

Other of our equipment included a Morell magnetic compass, a drift indicator, an earth inductor General Electric compass and an improved sextant, made by Fave Le Petote.

When we went to the field to start (3 o'clock Friday morning), we found a crowd gathered under an overcast sky. The wind was from the quarter and we could not use it to advantage on the takeoff. For this reason our run on the ground was rather long—700 meters. It rose rapidly, considering its heavy load, and we cleared the hills beyond Paris with ease, as we moved eastward. The rise and start was so easy, in fact, that we regretted the 500 liters of benzine we had thought to take and finally decided not to because of their weight.

The air was calm, with a slight tail wind. The sky remained overcast as long as we were above France. A plane escorted us to the coast, which we reached at L'Orient at 7:28 o'clock. Fishermen were starting out in their boats at that time in the morning and they waved us adieu as we put out to sea above them. We observed the waves and could readily deduce that we still had a wind behind us. Air conditions were so favorable that we were able to reduce the revolutions of our motor and save fuel without much lessening the speed of the plane.

This was as we left the coast. It soon changed. Half an hour from L'Orient we ran into a mountain of fog.

This fog was so thick we could see nothing ahead, above or below us. Going down slowly, we found that it ended about 20 meters above the sea and left a clear path. But we were too heavily loaded to risk flying that low. A sudden air current might have thrown us to the water to crack up and sink immediately.

FLEW BLIND

We chose to climb and travel what path there was between the fog and the clouds. This was about 300 meters. Our plane handled well and rode smoothly, but because of the clouds and fog we could take no observations whatever.

At about 9 o'clock that morning I reduced the revolutions of motor another hundred per minute. We were making a fine saving of fuel.

Two hours of this and the weather broke. The clouds thinned and the fog lifted. The sun came out and the wind freshened. We immediately made observations and learned that we were 50 kilometers off our course, taken there by the brisk north wind. The waves began breaking, indicating that the wind was increasing. The air became so clear that we could easily see for a distance of 50 kilometers.

Going lower, we found that flying at 50 meters above the water was not tiresome and there we stayed. At this low altitude the air was as smooth as a highway and of an even temperature, whether we were in the sun or an occasional slight mist, because it was close to the water.

We continued on the course we had taken until 5:30 o'clock that evening and then Kubala indicated a new course due west.

This was to be kept along the forty-first degree until we crossed the steamship lanes. Following it would cut 150 kilometers from our projected flight over the Azores.

By 7:30 we were in line with the Azores. We had been flying 15 hours and everything appeared to be working for us better than we had dared to hope.

Half an hour later, at 8 o'clock, the fog and clouds returned. The wind was high at the upper altitudes and we flew through the fog near the water in order to avoid it.

It was at 1:30 that Kubala went to the bottom of the ship to make an observation of our drift from the true course because of the wind. There, on the floor, he found oil, a quantity of it.

In great alarm he shouted to me of his discovery. It was not more than a few minutes after this that my instruments told me of a lessening oil pressure. I turned to my companion and said:

DECIDE TO TURN BACK

"What shall we do now? Where shall we fly, onward or back?"

We did not want to turn back, but both of us knew we would have to do so. Thought had to control us, rather than ambition, hard as that was. In the decision we reached there were also considerations by Kubala of wind velocity and direction and the possibility of reaching help.

The Western Hemisphere was too far away—1,700 kilometers. The wind was southwest, therefore on our quarter and slightly retarding us, and there was fog ahead, in all probability. In addition there were no ship lanes ahead. The Azores were the nearest land, but the stars were obscured and we could not take observations to make sure of reaching the islands.

WOMAN'S BODY HIDDEN NEAR MANSION

International News Service.

EVANSTON, Ill., Aug. 8.—The body of Miss Jennie Constance, 42, head of the English department of Bradley Polytechnical College, of Peoria, was found at dawn today behind a hedge in front of the palatial home of George H. Peaks, Evanston millionaire.

She had apparently been beaten to death with a piece of lead pipe.

That the crime was committed without the motive of robbery, was evidenced, police declared, by the fact that a valuable necklace lay beside the body and two rings remained untouched on her fingers.

Span Crash Death Is Accident

No one was held responsible for the death of John M. Egloff, 30, of 450 Fourth street, Braddock, injured fatally when the Cow Hollow Bridge, between Bridgeville and Mayview, collapsed July 17. The truck which he was driving was hauling a 25-ton steam shovel over the span as it gave way. The jury at the inquest today returned a verdict of accidental death.

Engineers of the county road department, Thomas George, contractor, and others testified that the permit for moving the apparatus over the bridge was granted without question because the same machinery had been successfully moved oved the span in February.

It was testified that the bridge had not been officially inspected recently, but that a superficial examination had been made by painters who had repainted the structure two weeks before the accident occurred, and that they found the span in good condition.

The bridge went down when two steel uprights supporting the center span collapsed.

In the opinion of Assistant County Solicitor W. D. Jacobs, the cement bases of the steel pillars had been undermined by heavy rains.

Weather Conditions.

The thunderstorm area diminished considerably. With the exception of light storms in Eastern Kansas, Missouri and moderately heavy rains in Southern Texas, no rain occurred in the Plains states. East of the Mississippi the rains were light and occurred in the lower Ohio valley and at scattered places elsewhere over the eastern states. In the Pittsburgh district there was no rain except at West Newton and at Johnstown.

The West Indian hurricane apparently is off the eastern coast of Florida. There are no high winds reported in Florida this morning.

There was little change in temperature conditions from the Plains states eastward. This morning the temperature is 74 degrees nearly everywhere and the maximum yesterday was close to 90 degrees throughout the Ohio Valley states.

River Conditions.

The rivers are nearly stationary. Stage at Pittsburgh is 11.1 feet; Dam No. 2, 8.6, and Dam No. 6, 8.1 feet. The dams are up.

NEW RATE EFFECTIVE IN WEEK

One week from today the compromise rates on lake cargo coal shipments from Kentucky, Tennessee, West Virginia and Virginia to Lake Erie ports will take effect, the Interstate Commerce Commission announced yesterday at Washington.

The commission announced that it would not interfere with the new proposed lake cargo rates in view of the court contest made upon its previous ruling by southern railroads and coal producers.

The rates, which become effective next week, will constitute a 10-cent-per-ton advance on lake cargo coal shipments from Southern territory, but are complicated by a refund provision under which shippers, after January 1, will be entitled to draw back a portion of their payments.

When the Southern lines proposed to cut the rates in spite of the objection of the commission, Northern railroads serving Ohio and Pennsylvania also reduced their rates to allow competing coal from that territory to gain a footing in lake trade.

RAID IN HURRY YIELDS RUM

"Wait a minute," Minni Martina, 32, is alleged to have told prohibition agents last night when they pounded on the door of her home, 55 Arthur street. But the agents didn't wait. They broke in, and reported finding 21 half pints of moonshine in the basement. She was arrested and released on bond.

A home brew plant was uncovered in a raid on a store in Main street, Boston, where eight crocks of beer mash and 546 pints of homebrew were seized. Another store at 607 Walnut street, Versailles, yielded 362 pints of beer and a small quantity of moonshine, the raiders said.

Tony Carve, 33, of 229 Pennant street, was arrested when a 100-gallon still, 40 gallons of moonshine and 46 barrels of mash were confiscated in his home. In a dwelling in the rear of 2478 Wadsworth street, a 75- and a 200-gallon still, moonshine and a large amount of mash were repoprted taken, along with Walter Typanski, 49, who was lodged in the Central Police Station.

GIRL'S SCREAMS ROUT ROBBERS

It was the hot weather that kept Miss Eleanor Rose, aged 20, of 2 Edith place, awake last night and unable to sleep she was quickly attracted to her window by noise made by two burglars making entry to the Linden pharmacy at 3274 Ward street. The girl's bedroom window looks directly out over the rear of the drug store and she plainly saw the two men breaking open the store window. Her screams frightened the pair and when police arrived they could not be found.

You Know Your Own 'Traffic Cop?'

FRIEND OF YOURS?

How many of Pittsburgh's "traffic cops" do you know? Can you call by name the chap nearest your home? The fellow you pass halfway to your office in the morning? The men who wave you through downtown streets? The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph is introducing them to Pittsburgh. Here is one for today. His name tomorrow!

YESTERDAY'S "TRAFFIC COP" WAS THOMAS GOOD, MARRIED, 1905 LIGHGOW AVENUE, WHO HAS BEEN IN POLICE SERVICE FOR FOUR YEARS, TWO AND ONE-HALF OF WHICH HAVE BEEN SPENT AS TRAFFIC OFFICER AT WATER AND SMITHFIELD STREETS.

Both were taken to West Penn Hospital. Fears gave himself up to police and was charged with reckless driving.

SIDEWALKS OF PITTSBURGH

THE downtown streets see more women drivers in the late afternoon than at any other period. They drive to the business section to pick up their husbands to drive them home from work.

It is a theory or a vain belief among many men motorists that women are not good drivers. This observer would place them a little higher in the batting averages than the men. They stick to their side of the road, seldom travel too fast, and are far more polite than men motorists.

Some of the younger girls, in the snappy roadsters, burn up the streets, but the women deserve special mention as a class.

The mail in one day has brought no less than four letters touching on the presidential race. We steer away from them as an expert in perfumes might move away from an incinerating plant or a stockyard. We have no desire to rush in where the angels would do a fadeout. You have no idea how touchy people are on some things. On any one or two or three subjects one word is like putting a match to a gasoline can. And so we say: "No bid," on the letters touching on national politics.

JUST the other day we got a lesson in how very careful one must be in writing. We took occasion to speak a few kind words for Mr. Tunney, the retired champion, and the result was as hasty a bit of letter-writing from a heated gentleman as you'd care to look at. He called us one or two bad names. It took the entire staff to lift our crying eyes from a very damp handkerchief. Some writers rant and rave over anonymous digs. We sort of like them. And it's surprising the amount of truth that creeps into them. The poison letter we got the other day was the first in 10 months. In 10 months, we have undergone a transformation, judging from the letters. Ten months ago we were a cad. Today, look at us. We are a poor fish.

Sam Shenkan, statistician to the coroner, was a city councilman in the days when the various wards sent select and common councilmen to the City Hall to represent them. He was a power in the old Hill district politics. He at that time was operating a hotel in Wylie avenue. He served a rare species of garlic to those who fancy garlic and his free lunch in general was the talk of the neighborhood. He was so well known that when some of the men of his district applied for naturalization papers they told the court, in answer to questions, that the president of the nation, the governor of the state and the mayor of the city were all one and the same man: Samma da Shenk. Ah, those were the day!

Visitors to Highland Park are attracted by a very old "Warning" sign which has stood well the ravages of time. In dim letters this sign warns there will be arrests if people on horseback ride abreast at narrow points and the same goes for the reckless boys and girls who used to ride their bicycles through the park. The police work of those days must have been pretty tough, what with people taking their lives in their hands every day on their bikes. We boast now of time made in our petrol wagons but there was something to talk about in the old days, too. "All the way downtown and never touched the handle bars," was the boast of nervy boys of long ago.

Will Rogers Says

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Aug. 8.

A reassuring wire from Mrs. Stone says Fred is getting along fine. That's great news.

Here is a secret, but don't let it out. They are going to tell Hoover Saturday that he is to go into the finals against Al.

His speech is to be shortened to 45 minutes. That's a long time for a man just to say: "I am proud that my country has chosen me for their standard-bearer, and I hope that I will be able to live up to that high standard."

I see where Coolidge says that Hoover will win. Cal has to issue almost a sensation statement nowadays to get in the papers.

He can catch a whale now and never even land on the editoial page.

Yours, WILL.

HALF WIVES by Winifred Van Duzer

Fluff Takes Marie's Place At the Office While She Is on Her Honeymoon

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE:

Ione Farr, just out of high school, gets a position with Max Weimar's music publishing house in New York. Her chum, Marie Karey, is engaged to Palmer Elliott, a young lawyer, and plans to marry him on a 50-50 basis. She is always holding up as a model Ione's sister Jenepher who is married, has a small son, and also holds a fine position in a smart New York shop. Benz, Weimar's office manager, takes Ione to Tin Pan Alley where she meets the famous song writer, Wolfie Speed, and persuades Antony Ros, a matinee idol, to use Speed's new song after Benz had failed. She goes on a picnic with Alan Blake, an accompanist for the Weimar concern, who shows admiration for her, but Blake neglects her and she goes motoring with Benz who asks her what marriage has to do with love, and later tells her he loves her. The next day he apologizes for having hurt her and asks if they cannot be good friends. Blake attends a Hallow'en party at her house and Ione realizes she loves him. Little Timmy gets lost and doctors fear for his life.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

STEPS on the walk; Tom came in, his face terrible. Tim after him, small, dripping bundle in his arms. Jenepher cried out and Tim laid the boy on her lap. He was breathing with a rasping sound, the small fellow; eyes partly closed, lying very limp. Jenepher began to tear off his clothes, carrying him up the stairs.

"Where, Tim?" His eyes were like death; Ione looked with pity stabbing through her.

"Under the hedge, two doors over. You think he'll live? Fellow's calling the doctor—" He put his face down in his hands.

The doctor came and went away, promising to return later. The baby was feverish, croupy probably—better be sure. Pneumonia, now! That would go hard with him!

The air was tense. Janey must go home, but she, too, would come back. Tim never raised his face from his hands.

Jenepher turned whitely to her father.

"You think I should have been here; it wouldn't have happened if I'd stay home. But I want things for him—for all of us. Most of all for Timmy. Want him to grow up in a fine home—have an education that will get him somewhere—farther than Tim can go. A start—high prospects.

"Oh—it's better for all of us because I go out to work. We wouldn't have much — well, you know we'd have very little—"

He spoke in a still, deep voice. "For what shall it profit a man if he shall gain the whole world and lose his own soul? Or what shall a man give in exchange for his soul?"

CHAPTER XIV.

IT was Marie's wedding day. Ione got up an hour early so she might stop and see the bride on her way to work.

They were making no occasion of it, little Marie and Palmer Elliott. At noon they would walk over to the rectory of "The Chimes," the chapel up Hillside avenue, where both Marie and Ione had been confirmed. A brief ceremony in the study there; their vows taken in a great simplicity.

Then they would go out, man and wife, facing the world together—on to the tiny, wooden bungalow that had been building for them and they had been furnishing, room by room, all summer.

They had manged their vacations now; two weeks they would have in their new home.

Very sweet, Ione thought it, as she hurried along through the tingle of sun-drenched November. But not what she would wish. June—roses—oh, thousands, millions of roses everywhere! The great old world stirring in a velvet softness; leaves clapping their hands for joy. Romance walking delicately in the early summer.

Marie came to the door, kissed her, caught her hand nervously. Her eyes were red.

"Such a tremendous thing, Jo! I didn't realize—oh, you think I can make him happy? Starting out together so. It's a long road ahead—"

"Of all things! 'Course he'll be happy and lucky—oh, my yes! Why, you'll make the road blossom all the way for a boy like Pal. You're not sorry, Marie darling?"

"No—too glad. But I have a still feeling inside, something holy. I didn't know—didn't realize—"

Little movements about the sweet lips. Then she raised her face and Ione saw the look of stillness on it. As if she were listening to splendid music. . . .

It sank into Ione's heart like a benedictoin; her eyes brimmed as she went up to the tiny room Marie was leaving.

Her things all were laid out on the bed. Neat, gray suit, very smart and plain; soft color of mist on the river. Small, gray hat to fit low on the red-brown hair. Gray suede slippers trimmed with Pal's gift—stunning cut steel buckles.

He was sending her sweetheart roses; their pinky gold would be lovely against the gray.

"Adorable," Ione kept saying. "It's adorable. A beautoful bride—oh, I wish you happiness, dear Marie. You and Pal—all there is!"

Little gray suit—gray hat—no! She thought about it on the train, wondering that Marie would be satisfied so.

White satin, slim and smooth as a lily—veil like an angel's garment—those for a bride. A young bride walking in beauty up the dim aisle. Only once could a heart be lifted by that ecstasy; sad thing it was to let it pass.

Yet she remembered the stillness on Marie's face and her mind sank to its knees.

She was thinking of it, eyes all dewey, when Alan Blake said, "Ho, Frills — weeping?" What about? Lonesome for the little chum?"

She laughed, steadying her lips. "She had such a high look, Lanny. Why, I never thought of a wedding that way."

"Sentimental like all the dear frills. All cry as if the bride were going to her doom." His eyes twinkled.

"No, but it seems so lifted up; solemn, like standing on a mountain at dawn."

He bent down, said through straightened lips, "You would feel that for yourself, Ione? You thought that this morning?"

She nodded, hushed with the clamor of her feeling. He picked up a pencil, put it down again. She saw his hand shake.

Now it was that Fluff Hartwick was moved to the desk next to Ione to take Marie's place for two weeks.

She was a girl of incredible thinness and the straight, flat figure of a child. Her face, too, was childlike in its rounded curves.

It made Ione think of a picture on a shiny candy box she kept her hair ribbons in when she was a child. There was the same even pinkness, the same blank expression, even when the girl smiled; the same immense, round eyes.

And there was the same flutter of tight, straw-colored curls over ears and temples.

Ione came to know with what care Fluff guarded those curls. She always was putting up a small claw of hand, touching them anxiously, turning them under. Rainy noons she often sent a boy for sandwiches lest going out in the damp would straighten them.

Her voice was a piping treble. "Like a kitten mewing," Ione thought with a silent giggle. It had that insistent whine—"Poor little me, oh poor little me." That seemed to run through everything she said.

Ione neither liked nor disliked her. Fluff took her slight offers of friendliness stolidly. She was lackadaisical, mildly bored, her blank eyes wide in the presence of the girls she met in the dressing room, the center of sociability at the office.

But let a man approach—any man, from one of the song pluggers to Papa Weimar, and she became alive. Her face would light up; she would begin to bubble. She managed to give the impression of winding herself around the male sturdiness, chattering a baby-talk jargon all the time.

Benz came in for this one day when he happened to be standing beside her. "Bad ol' Eddie—iss he was. Fordot all 'bout ittle me, so he did."

Like that, she began. He raised an eyebrow, listened with a twisted grin. Later he gave Ione a wink, hunching his shoulders.

"You'll have to protect me from the clinger. That one—a vine—Lordy!"

The Fatal Season -:- -:- By Fanny Darrell

© 1928, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc., Great Britain rights reserved

SUMMER—the bachelor's fatal season! He so prides himself on his freedom and barricades his heart against Cupid's attacks, until wise old Summer with her golden days and moonlit nights knocks all his theories into a wee cocked hat. Then what happens?

A lovely girl, a pair of eyes which glance so shyly yet so come-hitherly in his direction, a pair of red lips and a lovely shining head upset all his determined efforts to retain his freedom. And the first thing you know he's fast enmeshed in Cupid's snares.

He has resisted the lure of Winter, the call of Spring, but Summer—well, it has gotten him at last, and shamefacedly, but happily, he feels the golden chains of Love binding him fast to the pillar of Happiness.

HOW TO KEEP WELL by Royal S. Copeland M.D. U.S. Senator from New York

Germs Don't Live in Clean Places.

WHETHER you live in the city or in the country you come in contact with dust. It irritates your eyes, your nose and your lungs. It is bad for health to be too much in a dusty place. Our mothers did not teach us to clean the house and to dust the furniture simply for the sake of appearances. They taught us to do these things because they help in giving good health.

DR. COPELAND

I often think about our domestic habits, and am filled with admiration because of their scientific foundation. For instance, every sunny morning, as you drive along the country roads, you will see the bedclothes hanging on the line, you will catch the reflection of the bright tin pans lying out in the sun, and the milk pails are kept where the sunshine will reach them. The importance of putting things out "to sun" is a common teaching of the home.

Our grandmothers did not know anything about germs, but they did know that the milk would sour unless the milk pans were pure and sweet. They knew the health of the family was better if the musty smell of damp bedding was dispelled.

As a matter of fact, there is no better germicide than sunlight.

Take a germ like the germ of tuberculosis, for instance—by exposure to the sunlight it will die in six or eight hours. There are marvelous effects in sunlight beyond the familiar one of heat and illumination.

Just as our mothers knew the value of sunlight, so they knew the harmfulness of dust. They realized that many an illness can be traced to exposure to dust and smoke.

It must be remembered that dust is a material thing. Tiny particles of matter float in the air. When they come in contact with mucous membranes of the eyes and nose and throat, irritation and congestion result. If the exposure is long continued the congestion increases and inflammation follows.

While an inflammation of this sort might readily disappear upon removal from dust exposure, yet it prepares the way for inoculation with harmful germs. If the bad effect of the dust is found in the throat or lungs it prepares the way for the germs of tuberculosis or some pus-producing germs. Bronchitis or pneumonia may find ready access to the system if the way is prepared by the irritation produced by dust.

In the house, the barn, the corn crib—everywhere you are going to spend any time—there should be cleanliness and freedom from dust.

Love's Embers Absorbing Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife"

By ADELE GARRISON

Mary Comes Face to Face With Noel Veritzen.

IT did not take me long, running at the pace I set myself, to come close enough to Mary and Marion and to hear their voices. They were chattering like the children they really are, and Junior's part of their colloquy was no whit younger than theirs.

"Beat you that time," Mary was crowing, and my thoughts went back to the summer when she first visited the farm and lorded it over Marion.

"So did I," Junior struck in. "Marion, you were booby this trip."

"That's what I was, honey," Marion said laughingly, while I, knowing something of the girl's athletic prowess at school, guessed that she purposely had been last in the race.

"I never was much good at running," she went on, "but I can climb like what's one of those things which jump up the mountain sides?"

"Oh! I know!" Junior squealed excitedly. "I've got a picture of one in my animal book. It's a chamois."

"That's it," Marion laughed. "I'll tell you what I'll do. I'll stump you both to a climb up that dune. I'll bet I get there first."

"You're on," Mary said, and I wondered if in the diversion of the race she had forgotten that Noel Veritzen was standing not far from the dune which Marion had indicated. The strains of his violin were still floating out over the water, but I knew that when he should hear the climbers, his music would cease, and he would steal forward, hoping that I had kept my promise to him.

"I'll bet I beat you both," Junior boasted valiantly, but when they had ranged themselves and given a signal agreed upon, Mary's rush carried her far ahead of the others. Again I bowed to Marion's strategy, for when she reached the top a little behind Junior, Mary had forgotten everything else in the childish triumph of winning.

"Thought you were a chamois!" she laughed. "You'd be a card on a mountainside!"

"I guess that's right," Marion agreed with a meekness so utterly foreign to her that I wondered Mary was not suspicious. "But isn't it lovely up here? Doesn't the camp fire look beautiful? It's so far away that we can't hear them talking. Come on. There's a place over here where you can see the moon rise sooner than at any other spot around here. It's sort of hard walking though, if you're tired."

There was a subtle challenge in her voice which Mary answered.

"Tired!" she exclaimed. "What from? Go on if you know the way. I'll come right behind you."

"Come, Junior!" Marion said. "Take hold of my hand and lead me. You know this place better than anybody."

"You bet your boots I do," my son returned with vibrant pride in hs voice, and the little procession started, walking, as I realized with a little catch in my throat, straight toward the spot where Noel Veritzen was standing, sending out strains of music which I knew he was hoping would plead his cause with the girl who so unaccountably had refused to see him when he had called at the farmhouse.

Silently I stole behind them, realizing after a minute that the song Noel was playing had ended and that he had not begun another. I felt the silence catch at my throat. Then dimly I saw Noel's figure outlined against the dune, and saw Marion and Junior swerve to one side, leaving Mary face to face with the young violinist.

"Mary!" said Noel Veritzen. "Mary "

MEDITATIONS of a MARRIED WOMAN

by HELEN ROWLAND

MAN—AND TEMPTATION

THE modern woman dresses like a living picture in order to make herself a temptation to men, according to her latest critics.

Every feminine bathing-suit is a flag to his senses, and every revealing skirt an invitation or a dare.

* * *

That all depends on how you look at it! Eve did not succeed in tempting Adam, until she put ON a few clothes; and no man is a "temptation" to any woman, until he gets his collar on and covers up his knees.

HELEN ROWLAND

But the one thing a woman finds it hardest to do, is NOT to tempt a man. Ever since the first woman started it by tempting his appetite with an apple, man has made more fuss about that little bite that Eve took than about the cheerful eagerness with which Adam swallowed all the rest of it.

* * *

Why any woman should TRY to tempt a man is a mystery! No matter what a woman does, it is a "temptation" to a man.

When she wore long trailing skirts and lots of petticoats, she tempted him through his imagination. And now that she goes bare-kneed and bare-backed, she tempts him with her sex appeal and through his eyes.

* * *

Even when women wore bustles and tight basques and buns, they were accused of "tempting" men with those atrocities; and now that they go about with shaved necks and an exposed clavicle, they are still accused of trying to be "tempting."

* * *

If a woman uses a lipstick and keeps herself scented and powdered, she tempts a man to kiss her. And if she scorns all the first aids to beauty and goes about in bungalow aprons, she drives him to seek some other woman's kisses.

* * *

If she is gay and frivolous and jazzy, she tempts him to keep late hours and waste his money at night clubs; and if she is quiet and unconvivial, she drives him "out of the house," to seek his amusements with his cronies or more amusing women.

* * *

If she is a good cook, she tempts him to over eat and to court embonpoint—and if she is a delicatessen wife, she drives him to cultivate dyspepsia in the restaurants.

* * *

Oh yes, a man has a thousand more temptations than a woman—because he knows just where to look for them, or where to telephone them, or how to invent them.

* * *

As a matter of fact, never was woman less "tempting" than she is in the frank, revealing and perfectly utilitarian clothes she wears today. They are healthy, becoming, comfortable and sensible; but as lures and snares, they are not in it with the discarded Turkish veil or an old-fashioned hoop-skirt.

* * *

But man MUST have his "temptations"—and woman will always be supposed to supply them. Even if she should elect to go around in a nose-ring and an Indian blanket, she would still be trying to "tempt" him!

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Thursday, August 9.

A DAY of unrest, anxiety and possibly peculiar experiences, personal and in business matters, is the presage based on the adverse lunar transits and the strong position of Neptune, orb of the unusual and eccentric. It may be difficult to make headway with corporations or with new ventures, owing to the danger of duplicity, fraud or chicanery. Precaution and self-control under all circumstances may assist over treacherous places. Heart and home affairs may cause anxiety.

Those whose birthday it is are under the prospect of a difficult year, with peculiar and intriguing experience personally and in business affairs. Guard against treachery and fraud, as well as domestic inharmony and be firm in self-government.

A child born on this day may need very careful training and discipline, as its tendences may be toward self-indulgence and erratic or singular conduct.

We move by the same law as the most majestic of the heavenly orbs. Nor can we escape from the law of the smallest atom; the whole universe vibrates to unity and in harmony.—ESOTERIC BULLETIN.

DEAR MISS GALE:

I have written to you before and you gave me wonderful advice, so I am coming back again. Here is my problem: My parents are tired living in the city and they want to move on a farm, and, of course, there is nothing else for me to do but go along. The trouble is, I have loads of girl and boy friends in the city and I'm afraid if I get on a farm I won't be able to meet any girl or boy friends. What do you think, Miss Gale? Please, Miss Gale, print this letter in The Sun-Tele as soon as possible, because we will be moving out of the city at any moment now, and I would like to see your advice printed before I go. Here's another problem, Miss Gale: About a week ago I met a fellow who is awfully good looking. He told me and my girl friend that he likes me, and I like him, but sometimes I think I love him. How can I tell whether I love him or not, Miss Gale? When I am away from him I don't seem to care much, but as soon as I see him I imagine I love him. He is the best looking fellow I ever met, so please, Miss Gale, tell me whether I love him or not. I am 19 and I think he is the same age. Am I too young to fall in love? I will appreciate any advice you can give me, Miss Gale, and I will sign myself

CHIQUITA.

I think you are just infatuated a little with this boy, my dear. Don't worry, you will meet new friends at your new home.

Broken-Hearted

DEAR MISS GALE:

I am a steady reader of your column and find it very interesting and think you give good advice, so I have come for some, too. I am in love with a fellow two years older than I, and this fellow moved out of my town to a distant place. But, Miss Gale, he has written to me occasionally and tells me he loves me, and when he comes to visit his relatives (he comes every three or four months), he goes out with another girl I know. But this girl he goes out with isn't any good. Then before he goes back he takes me home one night and tells me that he is going to write to me. But he hasn't done so yet. So, Miss Gale, I hope you will give me some good advice. I agree on your three questions. Thank you for the advice. Hope you publish soon. I am,

BROKEN-HEARTED.

You will not like my advice, but I hope you will try to follow it. Forget this boy. If he isn't interested in seeing you on his visits home, then he doesn't care much for you.

SKYWARD

By Commander Richard E. Byrd

Expeditions Financed by Subscriptions From Several Sources

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE:

Commander Byrd first trained for a seafaring profession but later took to an aviation career. He has explained the dangers of pioneer flying and many of the earlier historical flights. During the war he established an air unit at Halifax, N. S. He has described his trans-Atlantic flight in the America. He plans an expedition into the unexplored Antarctic regions and tells of the necessary planning and the immensity of the costs.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

Helped by Famous Men

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

ALMOST the only way to finance a modern expedition is to get subscriptions from private citizens, institutions and associations altruistically interested in pure science. It is easy to picture Mr. Millionaire giving a big sum to applied science. In such an investment he always has a chance of making a killing if the research be a success. But contributions to Arctic exploration are generally made unselfishly, without any chance of dividends.

But before the leader can approach a prospective contributor he must have established on one hand his ability to do the job and on the other the authenticity of his plans.

In my own case I struggled through a maze of red tape in 1925 before finally emerging with Secretary Wilbur's approval. What I wanted to do was to command the naval aviation unit of the National Geographic Society's expedition, then bound for North Greenland.

"I will go to the President," the secretary told me, signifying I had reached the last barrier.

President Approves

The secretary told me later about his interview with his chief. He went thoroughly into detail.

"There is still a great deal of blank space on our polar map, Mr. President. Don't you think we ought to let Byrd go?" he concluded. In complete silence the President had listened, yet with attentiveness.

After a moment of thought the President nodded to his cabinet officer and said "Why not?"

The President's tacit approval of my plan enabled me to get prompt orders to go north.

The year after our 1925 expedition Bennett and I launched our plan to conquer the North Pole by air. The first man I tackled was Edsel Ford. He was near my own age, a big man with ideals, and son of a father who thought in terms of America's tomorrow.

It was a big moment. I laid my cards on the table.

I told him frankly the plane I wanted to use, knowing that this was a machine in competition with the new Ford design. It was a ticklish moment, asking a big man to finance a scheme that would be an advertisement for his competitor. It is significant of the man's tolerant, broad character that when I finished he said simply:

"Certainly I will help you. I believe your expedition will do a lot to increase popular interest in aviation in America."

Rockefeller Helps

I was now in a position to condition the ship which the United States Shipping Board had so kindly put at my disposal and to order the provisions we had to have aboard in case we were forced to winter.

More money had to be got. I had gone ahead too far to turn back; yet my credit was strained to its breaking point. I called on the president of one of our great corporations, a Croesian cliff dweller on Broadway. In my pocket I fondled a warm letter of introduction from an old friend of the great man.

From nine a. m. until after noon I cooled my heels in the magnate's plush-lined outer office. By a side door my quarry slipped out to luncheon, leaving word that he would see me in the afternoon. I waited. As the sun was sinking over the Hudson I got my final word—of dismissal. A colored messenger came out and told me that Mr. Blank had decided he couldn't see me at all.

How different were my relations with John D. Rockefeller, Jr. I soon found that Mr. Rockefeller had made just as much a business of giving as the modern explorer must make of collecting. Being of a scientific turn of mind, Mr. Rockefeller has developed into a past master in the art of giving. Mr. Rockefeller came to my rescue by matching Mr. Ford's contribution.

As the day of my departure North approached once more I saw my liabilities outdistancing my assets. Perhaps there is something in telepathy, for about this time Vincent Astor sent for me and wanted to know how I was coming along.

"I'm worried about your finances," he said, throwing down the guard that all rich men must wear. He had already made a substantial contribution to the expedition.

He offered to go on my note for any amount that I needed.

Again I saw how quickly and completely a big man can make up his mind on occasion.

Friends Generous

Nine men and one woman subscribed for my polar flight. I know that all gave for unselfish reasons; but some went so far as to refuse to let me even publish their names in connection with the enterprise. Among others who subscribed were Capt. and Mrs. John H. Gibbons, U. S. N.; Thomas Fortune Ryan, a Virginian, and Richard Hoyt, of New York.

When I left on our North Pole expedition I had a deficit of nearly $30,000, which before our expedition was reorganized swelled to nearly $40,000. The Amundsen-Ellsworth-Nobile expedition had a much larger deficit after the flight of the Norge.

Peary returned from his first expedition with a deficit.

Fifty-One Men

When our North Pole sailing day finally came the expedition was only partially built by the dollars that had passed through my bank account from the hands of generous friends.

For instance, we had procured the 3,500-ton steamer Chantier for the charter price of one dollar a year so long as we should need her. That we owe to the United States Shipping Board. Armour and Company gave us meat. The Pioneer Instrument Company gave us instruments and experts. The Weather Bureau sent along William Haines, one of its most experienced meteorologists. Johns Hopkins University loaned us Dr. Daniel O'Brien, as agreeable as he was able.

Business Offers

The Wright Aeronautical Company donated Doc Kincaid, noted last summer for having nursed the engines of all three planes that succeeded in flying the Atlantic. The Vacuum Oil Company donated oil and the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, gasoline. Of the fifty-one men on the ship, I paid only five their accustomed salaries.

Indeed, the success of my North Pole expedition was due far more to the patriotism, unselfishness and loyalty of a great many people than to any peculiar competence on the part of Bennett and me, who simply had the divine privilege of riding the winning horse.

Probably the most personal, surely the most insistent thing that keeps cropping up through all the explorer's business: What is the sense of Arctic exploration anyway? And the more the questioner knows about this question, the harder it is to answer. But let me frame my own reply:

The Antarctic continent, our next destination, is, save on a tiny fringe at one or two spots where seals and penguins abound, a white wilderness—so far as we know, lifeless as space and nearly as cold.

The only thing its exploration can promise is a tithe of abstract scientific information, though our expedition will be purely a scientific one.

We anticipate no immediate gain, unless it is from our meteorological investigations, no application of our discoveries to commerce. The expedition's scientists can perhaps only unfold something of the past. For my South Polar trip our justifiable incentive is that we shall add to man's store of knowledge in the abstract if only by gazing upon and photographing a portion of the 4,000,000 square miles of Antarctic territory as yet unseen by human eye.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIAL HAPPENINGS

With Mercury Flirting With Thermometer's Top, Society Plans for Thanksgiving Holidays

ALTHOUGH there are only three more weeks after this one remaining in torrid August, one has to be most optimistic to believe that fall with its crisp days is near. With the mercury in the thermometer being attracted nearer and nearer to the 90 mark, one finds it even more difficult to imagine that Thanksgiving is not months and months off. And yet some folks are already planning events for the Thanksgiving holidays, always a popular time for social affairs. The younger set regards this season with great favor, for then many of its members are home from school. Debutante affairs, which concern youth before all, are always numerous, haven't you noticed, the last week of November?

Already one date has been taken during this fall holiday season—a date for a debut. On Thanksgiving afternoon Mrs. Stansbury Sutton, of the Alder Court apartments, will present her young daughter, Oliveretta, to society at a tea in the Pittsburgh Golf Club. Oliveretta, you may not know, did not go East to school, but favored the South. She finished at Stuart Hall, Staunton, Va.

She and her mother have been away most of the summer. Now they have just returned from Bigwin Inn, Canada.

BRETTON WOODS, and Southampton, Narragansett Pier, Cape May and Bar Harbor, and, of course, Canada, have their devotees among Pittsburgh society folks, but Watch Hill still remains the most popular. Dr. Robert Milligan and his daughter, Peggy, have just arrived at this fashionable Rhode Island summer colony. Peggy will soon be a debutante, I expect. She'll not come out this year, though, for she and her sister subdebs will go back to school in September. Peggy is a Farmington girl.

FOR most society folks a sojourn at a summer colony is not a vacation, but a change to a cooler climate. Vacation has come to connote a rest or play period after many weeks of work.

Rhoda Drew, the lovely daughter of the James Byron Drews, of Morewood avenue, finds summer resort life a vacation, for she has been working hard all year at the Carnegie Institute of Technology in the Fine Arts College. Rhoda has shown a marked talent for sketching, design and painting. Do you remember the distinctive gowns worn by some of the aides at the Charity Ball last winter? Rhoda designed many of them, I believe, and helped paint the designs.

Just now she is at Southampton, a member of the house party which Jean Olcott is entertaining. Her brother, Stanley Drew, is also a guest. On Saturday evening Jean gave a dinner at the home of her parents, the Dudley Olcutts, in honor of her house guests.

THE wedding of Miss Dorothy Mae McGee, daughter of John J. McGee, of Penn avenue, and Howard Gordon Zeigler, of the East End, was solemnized yesterday morning in St. Lawrence's Catholic Church by the Rev. Phillip A. Callery. The bride wore Alice blue lace over blue satin, with a large leghorn hat trimmed with lace to match. Her sister, Miss Margery McGee, was maid of honor, appearing in shell pink chiffon with a hat to match. Norman Mary was best man. After an ocean trip, Mr. and Mrs. Zeigler will be at home in the East End.

MRS. W. J. FLEMING, of Freedom avenue, Brookline, has announced the marriage of her sister, Miss Margaret L. Emrick, and David A. Spencer, of Parnassus and Orlando, Fla. Mr. and Mrs. Spencer are motoring through New England and Canada, and after October 1 will be at home in Orlando.

* * *

ANNOUNCEMENT has been made of the marriage of Miss Jennie Frank, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Breamer Frank, of Pittsburgh, and James Jones, son of Mrs. Sadie Jones, which was solemnized Saturday at 5 o'clock in the First Presbyterian Church, Sixth avenue. Miss Helen Frank, sister of the bride, and Parry Jones, brother of the bridegroom, were the attendants. A dinner for the immediate families followed the ceremony at the Hotel Henry. Mr. and Mrs. Jones are taking an eastern trip.

BEECHVIEW CLUB FACED BY IMPORTANT SEASON

THE coming season will be a most important one for the Woman's Civic Club of Beechview. On October 4 the members will dedicate their new clubhouse on Beechview avenue. By the first of September the clubhouse will be open for club meetings.

The Civic Club, which has a membership of 65 women, wanted a clubhouse that had more of a home atmosphere than the usual organization headquarters. The nine-room new clubhouse will fulfill this wish. Yet there will be a stage suited to the presentation of plays, and there will be one room large enough for club meetings. The remodeling of the clubhouse, once a private home, is nearly finished. There are nine rooms, a dining room, a kitchen, reception hall, and meeting room, and attractive rooms on the second and third floors.

On September 11 the program committee will distribute club books for the year at the first meeting to be held in the clubhouse.

In charge of the house committee is the president, Mrs. J. S. Williams, assisted by Mrs. William Snyder, the vice president, and a committee.

Many of the members are now out of the city. Mrs. Lewis Smith is at Atlantic City. On August 19 a group of members will motor to a club cottage at Brady Lake.

THE Allegheny County Federation of Women's Clubs, like other women's organizations, is taking a vacation from club work. On October 28 the Federation will hold its first session of the new club year.

Mrs. Richard B. Perry, president of the association, has been serving as chairman of the social committee of the St. Clair Country Club this summer. On August 17 she and her family will leave for Canada to remain until fall arrives.

Mrs. J. A. Gettig of the Woman's Club of Braddock, who is one of the Federation vice presidents, has been spending the summer at Chautauqua.

OPEN SESSION AT CONNEAUT TOMORROW

CONNEAUT LAKE PARK, Pa., Aug. 8.—The stage is set and the curtain will go up to the strains of a military overture here tomorrow when thousands of former A. E. F. doughboys who once comprised the Eightieth, Blue Ridge Division, go over the top for their ninth annual national convention, which will last until Sunday.

With numerous committees already at the park and an elaborate program scheduled for the four days, the soldiers will jump off to a combination Hoover-Al Smith demonstration that has nothing to do with political parties, but is more interested in discussing surprise parties that occurred in No Man's Land 10 years ago. As veterans of a National Army division—rich men and poor men—they will slap backs, call each other various undignified names and wander off on a mental journey that starts with "Do you remember?"

Folders describing the reunion features have gone forward to the Blue Ridgers in Pennsylvania, Virginia, West Virginia and all other states in the Union. Fathers and mothers, wives and sweethearts, friends and comrades of other soldier organiaztions have been invited. Reduced railroad and hotel rates have been obtained. Ample housing facilities have been prepared, and a convention welcome and entertainment machinery assembled that will function with the effectiveness of a rolling barrage in the Argonne.

Reports from all sections indicate an unusual interest in the reunion on account of the session at a summer resort which is accessible by improved roads from the three states where the majority of the veterans reside.

Don't fool yourself:

Since halitosis never announces itself to the victim, you simply cannot know when you have it.

Marriage-and halitosis

If your husband, or your wife, has halitosis (unpleasant breath), it's your duty to call attention to it and suggest the effective remedy—Listerine.

Certainly this course is a better one than putting up with halitosis and saying nothing about it.

A great many people fool themselves in thinking they never have halitosis.

What a presumption! Because nobody knows when he or she is a victim. It doesn't announce itself to you. But it does to others. And that offends.

Listerine ends halitosis because it is a powerful deodorant. If you doubt this, rub a bit of onion on your hand. Then apply Listerine clear. Immediately the odor disappears.

Use Listerine morning and night, and between times, before meeting others. Lambert Pharmacal Company, St. Louis, Mo., U. S. A.

SUN-TELEGRAPH SPORTS

BEST IN PITTSBURGH — WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 8, 1928 — EIGHTEEN

SPEAKING OF SPORTS

BY HARRY KECK
SPORTS EDITOR

THIS is a bad time for veterans in the realm of sport. Bill Tilden more than once in the last two seasons, when he has failed where he formerly rode roughshod to victory, has repeated his famous, "Age, I think it is."

Charley Paddock, following his fall-down in the Olympics, said he was through. Almost everybody else admitted he was too old before he even made the trip. Jackson Scholz, winner of the 200 meters in 1924, also has been beaten by age.

Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics have been bounding along since he benched Collins, Cobb and Speaker.

The old guard in the heavyweight boxing division passes on.

Everywhere youth comes into its own. And youth lasts a shorter time in the field of sport than anywhere else. The rapid pace makes old men of the stars before they reach the age of 30.

FOR some time now we have been tooting our horn for Tommy Loughran, the light-heavyweight champion, as the logical next heavyweight champion. Gradually others are joining his bandwagon. His record forces them to this viewpoint. Even conceding his lack of a punch and general aggressiveness, they've got to admit that nobody is defeating him. And they can't forget how he slapped Jack Dempsey around at Atlantic City when the Manassa Mauler was training for his first fight with Tunney and also that he twice has whipped Johnny Risko to a frazzle. Who is Risko? Only the gent who was the real winner of Tex Rickard's most recent elimination tournament.

TUNNEY tells a good story about the phlegmatic Risko.

"I made it a point in all of my bouts to say something while the referee was giving us instructions before the first bell that would be calculated to upset my opponent," Gene said. "When I met Risko in Cleveland a few years ago, I interrupted the referee's remarks by demanding to know if I was going to get protection.

"'I know Risko's crowd,' I said. 'They'll try to slug me or trip me when I get into his corner.'

"Of course, I didn't mean that. I was just talking for Risko's benefit. Danny Dunn, his manager, went up in the air, skyhigh, protesting volubly. But Risko never tumbled. He remained as calm and peaceful as a contented cow and appeared not to have heard a word of what I said. How are you going to ruffle a bird like that?"

PITTSBURGH isn't the only city in the major leagues in which the attendance has been falling off this season. Virtually all of the cities are badly affected. Two of the worst are Detroit and Brooklyn. Detroit has been in the doldrums all year, while Brooklyn's descent has been gradual. Last Saturday, less than 4,200 cash customers passed through the turnstiles at Ebbets Field. On Sunday, a crowd of 7,000 turned out to see Dazzy Vance pitch. Less than 500 reserved seats were filled one day last week. It's tough making expenses under those conditions.

PRIOR to rising in their socalled might and socking the Cubs in both ends of a double-header on Monday, the Phillies had set up the remarkable record of yielding 119 runs, almost 10 per game, to their opponents in a stretch of 12 games. Meanwhile they themselves scored 62, or just a little more than half as many as their foes. No further explanation is necessary of why they are holding down last place in the race.

And speaking of this thing that they call "big league baseball," laugh this one off:

In seven games in the National League last Saturday, the teams piled up a total of 99 runs, 69 for the victors and 30 for the losers. The Pirates defeated the Phillies twice, 14-8 and 11-4; the Giants won twice over the Reds, 13-3 and 10-9; the Cubs trounced the Robins, 16-3, and St. Louis won, 3-2, and lost, 2-1, with the Braves.

In the American League, four games saw the teams total 42 runs, 28 for the victors and 14 for the losers.

THE TEAMS OF THE TWO LEAGUES COMBINED SCORED 143 RUNS IN 11 GAMES IN ONE DAY!

The lively ball? Inferior pitching? Super-batsmen? What's the answer?

Whatever it is, this savors of bush league baseball and may be the real reason for the decline in patronage at the major league parks.

FIGHT RESULTS

At Modesto, Cal.—John Lester Johnson defeated Chief Metoquah, 10 rounds.

At Los Angeles—Fidel LaBarba defeated Earl Maestro, 10 rounds.

At Allentown, Pa.—Henry DeWancker defeated Sid Lampe, 10 rounds; K. O. Laughlin knocked out Jack Reeves, 1 round; Heine Hart defeated Sammy Romano, 6 rounds.

At Wilmington, Del.—Jimmy Ireland defeated Young Chapple, 8 rounds; Sylvan Bass and Young Ketchel drew, 8 rounds; Red Rousch knocked out Spike Kenny, 4 rounds; Tiger Thomas defeated Billy Jones, 8 rounds; Tim Charles defeated Joe Parker, 6 rounds; Gene Lester defeated Billy Carter 6 rounds.

At New York—Jack Britton defeated Tommy Dunn, 10 rounds.

MELBOURNE, Australia, Aug. 8. (AP.)—Joe Marcus, American bantamweight, knocked out Young Ney, of England, in the seventh round of a scheduled 15-round match here tonight.

YANKEES ORDERED NOT TO QUIT

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 8.—(AP.)—John L. Daley, of Waltham, Mass., continued to club down the opposition in the bantamweight division of the Olympic boxing championships today. The New England youngster whipped Sanchez, of Chile, in three rounds.

Daley's victory placed him in the quarter-finals of his class. The first two rounds of the engagement, given over entirely to counter-fighting without a great deal of effective punching, were even, but the American pulled out the decision in the third with several fast rallies.

Robledo, of Argentina, kept pace with Daley in the bantamweight class by defeating Van Rumbeek, of Belgium, by decision. The South American's margin was decisive and placed him in the quarter-finals. For three rounds, Robledo rained uppercuts to the Belgian's head, once dropping him to his knees.

The third bantamweight to advance was Tamagnini of Italy, who eliminated Ortiz, of Mexico, in three rounds. The Italian won the decision by volleying rights and lefts to Ortiz' body and head in the first two rounds. The Mexican rallied in the third session, but could not overcome Tamagnini's large lead.

HOLAIKO IS VICTOR.

Stephen Holaiko, Auburn, N. Y., light-heavyweight, won a three-round decision over Majchrzycki, of Poland, to keep America in the running in the heavier divisions.

Holaiko won all three rounds, but was unable to floor his opponent. He easily won the first session and in the second rocked the Pole with fast lefts to the head. Holaiko kept on the aggressive in the final round to maintain his advantage.

In the second round of the lightweight competition, Fussell, of Rhodesia, defeated Orellano, of Mexico, by a decision in three rounds.

After temporary setbacks, the South American's husky continent got into winning stride again when Bucfiglio, of Argentina, defeated Dubbers, of Germany, and Diaz, of Chile, eliminated Careagne, of France, in the second round of the lightweight battles. Both matches went the full three rounds to a decision.

ORDERED TO CONTINUE

Gen. Douglas MacArthur, president of the American Olympic Committee, today refused Jacob W. Stumpf, manager of the American boxing team, permission to withdraw the team from the Olympic competition. Stumpf had requested the permission as a result of an adverse decision of judges who gave the Belgian flyweight, Marcel Sartos, the decision over Hyman Miller, of Los Angeles last night. Miller seemed to have all the better of the bout.

"Americans never quit," Gen. MacArthur said.

U.S. Swim Stars Win

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 8.—(AP.)—Six American swimmers competing in the semi-finals of the 100-meter backstroke and the 400-meter free-style reached the finals today and will dispute for the Olympic championship.

George Kojac, of New York, won his heat in 100-meter event in near record time and Walter Laufer, of Chicago, captured his heat handily with Paul Wyatt, of Uniontown, Pa., second.

The Americans who qualified in the 400-meter event were Raymond Ruddy, New York; Clarence Crabbe, Honolulu, and Clarence Clapp, Hollywood. Crabbe finishing second and Clapp third in their heat with Arne Borg, the Swedish champion, who finished first, the closest competition he has had since the 1925 Olympic swimming started. Ruddy finished third in his heat, trailing Zorilla, of Argentina, and Charlton, of Australia.

KOJAC IS WINNER

George Kojac of New York won the first semi-final in the 100-meter backstroke in one minute and 16 seconds. This time was inside of the former record of one minute, 16 1-5, held by James A. House, Jr., of the United States, which Kojac broke yesterday when he covered the distance in 1:09 4-5. Iriye of Japan was second in this heat and Beresford of England, third, qualifying with Kojac for the finals.

The second heat of the 100-meters backstroke was won by Walter Laufer of Chicago in 1:12 3-5. Paul Wyatt of Uniontown, Pa., was second and the other qualifier was Kuppers of Germany, who came in third.

Wyatt just managed to win by a "finger tip" from Kuppers, both being clocked at 1:14 1-5.

Arne Borg of Sweden finished first in the second semi-finals of the 400-meters free style. Clarence Crabbe, Honolulu, was second, and Austin Clapp, Hollywood, third.

BORG GETS SURPRISE

Arne Borg received the surprise of his swimming career when Crabbe and Clapp ran him a near dead heat in the second semi-finals.

Borg had come to be considered unbeatable, but with Clapp racing in an adjacent lane to him the two took the turns within one-fifth second of one another. It was only in the last 50 meters that Borg managed to forge slightly ahead. In the meantime Crabbe was making a strong bid in the outside lane. Borg and Clapp, intensely occupied with their own private duel, suddenly became aware of Crabbe's approach from the shouts of the multitude.

The times: Borg, 5:5 2-5; Crabbe, 5:6 2-5; Clapp, 5:6 4-5.

Yank Rowers Defeat Swiss Pair

SOLTEN, Holland, Aug. 8.—(AP.)—The American double scullers, Charles McIlvaine and Paul V. Costello, beat the Swiss pair of Boshard and Reider by four lengths today in the semi-finals of the Olympic regatta.

The Americans, Paul McDowell and John Schmitt, were beaten in the race for pair oared shells without coxwain, by the Germans, Moeschter and Muller, by two lengths in the semi-finals. The defeat eliminated them from the regatta.

In the next event the British pair, O'Brien and Nisbet, from the London Rowing Club, beat the Italian pair, Sisti and Bolzoni, thus entering the finals against Germany.

The Canadian double scullers, Joe Wright and Jack Guest, beat the Germans, Hoeck and Vogt, by one length. The Canadians' time was 6 minutes, 44 1-5 seconds. They maintained their lead throughout. At one time the Germans attempted to catch up but Wright and Guest spurted to hold their advantage. The Canadians maintained a steady 32 to the Germans' 37 stroke.

The Pennsylvania Barge Club four without coxswain today defeated the Italian four in the semi-finals, thus clinching the right to meet Great Britain in the final on Friday.

Collett, England's single sculler, who yesterday defeated Wright, of Canada, in the Olympic sculling event, was defeated by Pearce, of Australia.

Ken Myers, of Philadelphia, won in the semi-finals in the single sculls event from Gunther, of Holland. He will meet Bob Pearce, of Australia, for the title.

SEIFERT TO BOX IKE M'FOWLER

Sandy Selfert, the North Side heavyweight, has been signed to test Ike McFowler, Johnstown's promising Negro scrapper, who handed Ad Stone a fine trimming his last time out. The pair will meet at the Point Stadium in Johnstown, Thursday evening, August 23.

Matchmaker Cooney Martin, who has been grading McFowler along slowly, has hopes of landing him in the eliminations to pick a successor to the retired Gene Tunney.

PLAY ON MAJOR DIAMONDS

The games in the printers' tournament at Boston, with one exception, will be played at Braves Field and Fenway Park, the two major league diamonds in the Hub. Dan Barry, American League umpire and former printer, will be one of the arbiters. The champion will receive the Garry Herrmann $1,000 trophy donated by the former president of the Cincinnati Reds, a former printer. Boston has won permanent possession of the first trophy by reason of having annexed it four times. Chicago won last year's leg on the new award. Ten cities will compete in this year's tournament. They are Pittsburgh, Boston, Chicago, Indianapolis, Washington, St. Louis, St. Paul, New York, Cincinnati and Cleveland. A feature will be the playing of a midnight game at the Lynn, Mass., park between an Eastern and Western team under a 13,560,000 candle power beam which gives the field the appearance of daylight.

KREMER TO FACE ROBINS IN FINAL

By CHARLES J. DOYLE,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Staff Correspondent.

BROOKLYN, Aug. 8.—Admirable, indeed, is the stand of the Pirates, who today will try to windup their victorious tour of the east with another triumph over the Dodgers.

The commendable stand of the bold Buccaneers reached a climax yesterday as the Buccos won both ends of a bargain bill with the Dodgers, the second fight running 12 rounds. The scores were 4 to 3 and 3 to 2.

Remy Kremer will try to cop the finale this afternoon. If he needs any pitching inspiration surely Monsieur felt it yesterday as he saw three of his slab mates in heroic roles. Jess Petty is expected to twirl for the Robins.

Three Pittsburgh sharpshooters, not including Knoxville Bill Doak, supplied thrill after thrill for the fans who spent a cool afternoon at Ebbets Field. The boldest deed was achieved by the well-known Duke Burleigh, the master of the hounds, who snapped his finger in the faces of his long time buddies as he recorded his twentieth victory of the season. With more victories and more innings pitched than any other chucker in the big shows, Grimes deserves to be placed at the head of the star flingers for more than one reason.

GRIMES HEROIC

In gaining the contest that gives him a score of conquests, Grimes had to fight all the way. He was endangered in the ninth inning by Joe Harris' pinch effort with two out and a runner on first, but Sparky Adams came up with the rocket and a force play resulted.

Doug McWeeny was forced off the mound by the Pirates in the fourth. Lefty Clark finishing like a star.

Paul Waner injected a homer into this game that helped, the timely batting of Hargreaves, Traynor and Brickell also figuring in the gladsome result.

It was up to brother Paul to drive in the winning counter in the Contract of Till Here

PROMOTER JULES BECK, of Duquesne, has received the signed contract of Osk Till, of Rochester, N. Y., for his 10-round bout with Garfield Johnson, Negro light-heavyweight of Lawrenceville, which will be the windup of the second outdoor show of the season at the Duquesne Steel baseball park next Monday night. Till originally was slated to meet Johnson here last Monday, but a delay in forwarding contracts caused his manager to accept a match with Billy Vidabeck at Buffalo instead for that night and the local show had to be set back.

Joe Sekyra and Jimmy Braddock box the windup of Humbert Fugazy's weekly show at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, tonight. Georgie Levine and Izzy Grove are in the semi-final.

Jimmy McDermott and Babe Keller box at Cincinnati tonight, Howard Mitchell and Jimmy Neal appear in the semi-final.

K. O. Willie Laughlin, a good trial horse among the welterweights a few years back, has returned to the ring. He recently boxed a preliminary in his home town, Bethlehem, Pa., and scored a 30-second knock-out. His eyesight, which caused his retirement, is said to have been improved during his layoff. He boxed Benny Leonard, Ted (Kid) Lewis, Jack Britton, George Chip, Mike O'Dowd and other stars in his prime.

Matt Adgie is in hard training for his battle with Pete Latzo at the Phillies' baseball park, Philadelphia, August 20. Rene DeVos boxes Babe McGorgary and Jack Gross meets Sully Montgomery on the same card.

The veteran Pete Hartley boxes Harry Wallace in a 10-round bout in Brooklyn Friday night.

Buster Brown and Johnny Datto box at Cincinnati next Monday night.

It was a brilliant battle with Carl Stewart and Buck Jones pitching sensational ball. Both pitchers got good support from their mates. The Hitemen garnered only three htis, and the Smiths four.

PIRATES

twelfth inning of the twilight affair. The star batter did this very thing and yet it may be that Charley Hargreaves deserves the lion's share of the credit for this victory, inasmuch as the Trenton athlete came through with a hit in the ninth at a time when failure meant defeat.

The second splendid fight of the afternoon brought a magnificent slab duel between Fred Fussell and Bill Doak, the southpaw and spitball patriarch working seven runless rounds in swift precision.

BOOTS HITS HOMER

With two Buccos erased in the eighth, Boots Grantham in his quiet manner walked up to the plate and a moment later his bat threw sparks. Poor Bill Doak—he made the mistake of serving boots a fast ball instead of a "spitter." Before you could say Jack Robinson, the rocket was out of the park by the way of right field.

Truly Grantham's homer seemed like the play ball but Hank DeBerry opened the eighth inning with a single and Joe Harris, batting for Doak, also singled. Staz ran for DeBerry and Hendrick ran for Harris. Scoops Carey dropped a pretty bunt on the grass, and the bases were filled when Fussell made an attempt to stop Staz at third. A single and a sacrifice fly sent two runs over and the Dodgers were in front with one round to go.

Many big things are encompassed in one short inning, as the Pirates, led by Hargreaves and Pooch Barnhart proved. With one out, Hargreaves slammed a hot hit to left, Rube Bressler failed to stop the ball and the catcher reached third on the fumble. Eddie Mulligan pranced around on third as he ran for Hargreaves. Barnhart walloped a hot single to left and Eddie carried over the tying run. Jess Petty, who started the inning, was derricked and the Pirates threatened to drive to victory right there, but Big Jim Elliott postponed the Pittsburgh success until the twelfth round.

Carmen Hill came in to replace the departed Fussell. Carmen did not do a thing but fan four Robins in the ninth and tenth and he was still doing a real relief trick as the curtain came down on the darkening scene.

Little Sparky opened the twelfth with a hot single to left and Sprout Waner sacrificed. Brother Paul spanked Sparky over with the winning run when he singled to left.

"MY PERFECT FIGHT"

GENE TUNNEY

TOM HEENEY

GENE TUNNEY'S OWN STORY OF HIS FAREWELL RING APPEARANCE AGAINST TOM HEENEY.

by Gene Tunney

RETIRED HEAVYWEIGHT CHAMPION.

(COPYRIGHT, 1928, KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.)

CHAPTER V.

THE second punch that nearly brought a sudden end to my match with Tom Heeney landed full on the challenger's jaw in the tenth round, a few seconds before the bell rang. The blow dropped Heeney alongside one edge of the ring and from inside it looked as if only the intervention of newspapermen at the ringside kept Tom's body from rolling down into the press row.

The blow was the culmination of three rounds of terrific punishment, following the seventh session when the most sanguinary punch of the bout, a right hook to the left eye, almost blinded the challenger. For a moment in that round I thought the match was over. But the courage of the New Zealander, the sportsmanship and bulldog grit of the man kept him charging forward into punishment that was almost inhuman.

TENTH WORST ROUND

The tenth was Tom's worst round because he could feel what was happening to him. In the eleventh, I believe nature had exerted itself to some extent and Heeney hardly knew what was happening to him. But in the tenth every punch I threw, and I was trying then with everything I had to end the match with a knockout, landed with terrific force on Heeney's head or body.

Each time I feinted the challenger into rushing he smashed headlong into a right hand either to the head or the heart. Right from the start of the match my right hand, thudding first into Tom's body from the right side, then from the left into the region of the liver, had drained him of his strength and stamina. I was preparing Heeney for the final blow, the coup de grace. The chance came in the final moments of the tenth.

Heeney was reeling under the punishment. He was backed up against the ropes, face torn and bleeding, his head wobbling from side to side. A right and left, hooking upward, almost knocked him from the ring in my own corner. Then, as he straightened up with great effort, his chin was exposed and I let him have my right, squarely on the button, with everything I had behind it.

BLOW FELLS TOM

The blow caught Heeney flush on the chin. He sagged, took a step or two along the side of the ropes and collapsed. He lay first on his side, struggling to get up. Then, as the punch took full effect, he rolled over on his back and appeared about to slide from the ring. I thought at that time Tom was unconscious and the bout was over.

The noise was terrific. It seemed as if every one of the 40,000 persons in the park was screaming. In the midst of the pandemonium the bell rang. I had backed away, waiting for the count, when Referee Ed Forbes, standing over Heeney, waved both his arms over the fallen warrior. It appeared that he was ending the battling without bothering to start a count.

Luckily Forbes, who gave a masterly exhibition of refereeing, kept his head in the excitement and motioned Heeney's seconds to take their man away. Whether he heard the bell or not I do not know. Somehow, I found myself seated in my chair while Tom's seconds worked over him frantically to prepare him for the next round. I watched as they poured water over him, fed him stimulants and waved smelling salts under his nose and massaged the back of his head. Once he seemed to half fall from his chair. He was ready for action, however, when the bell rang for the eleventh round.

SENT OUT TO SLAUGHTER

The wisdom of sending the challenger out for more punishment in that last session always will be a debatable question. It is ring precedent that a man in Heeney's position, with the greatest prize at stake the ring can offer, shall lose, if he must, while in action. A champion must do the same. The same controversy sprang up after Jess Willard failed to rise from his chair and come out for the fourth round in defense of his heavyweight championship against Jack Dempsey.

It seemed to me there in the ring hardly human, however, that anyone should expect the courageous challenger to take more punishment than he had absorbed in the first 10 rounds. He was hopelessly beaten. Only the heart of a superman carried him on. If I had been behind the challenger I think I would have kept him on his chair when the bell rang for the eleventh out of feeling and appreciation for a man who had given all and failed.

Women's Tourney Carded

By VERNON A. SWARTSFAGER.

THE annual women's city golf championship will be played next week, beginning Monday, it has been announced. Mrs. L. G. Riley, of the Edgewood Country Club, champion last year, will not participate in defense of her title, according to a reliable authority.

It is expected the tournament will be open to all women golfers living within the city limits, regardless of whether they are members of a private club or not. The event will have a large field, it is anticipated, what with lively interest in it throughout the district.

The Schenley Park municipal links, scene of the competition, are in splendid condition, although the recent hot weather has made many of the greens rock-like.

Miss E. Lucille Bejach, runner-up in the prolonged final round last year, is the top favorite to cop this year; she has been playing splendid golf in practice rounds.

SLOCUM SCORES ACE ON COUNTRY CLUB LINKS

Frank S. Slocum joined the Hole-in-One Club when he scored an ace at the Country Club of Pittsburgh yesterday. The thrill that comes only once in a lifetime came at the 140-yard third hole; Slocum used a mashie.

He was playing with Reed Kennedy, Dr. W. H. Langham and H. A. Meeb.

Do Employers Keep Good Men Down? Replies Differ.

—By B. C. FORBES—

DO employers play fair? Are most of them ready to recognize and encourage talent? or do they delight in keeping good men down?

A recent column quoted and commented on a letter from a man who made very bitter allegations against employers and ended by intimating that he was thinking of jumping into a river. That has brought many letters.

FIRST read this from Ernest J. Doley, of Clayon, N. J.:

"The trouble with our friend is that he is wearing the wrong colored spectacles. The whole world looks blue as indigo to him because he just dearly loves those indigo specs of his. He probably would feel very much hurt if someone, who really wished to help him, crept up on him and tore his glasses from his nose and smashed them. He might quit his wailing (I doubt it) if he were then handed a rose-colored pair of spectacles with the words: 'My dear brother, accept these improved glasses, as a token of my friendship. Wear them. You'll be surprised how they will change the appearance of this world for you and bring you mental health and a fair measure of prosperity.'

"Isn't it a fact that this man is blaming others for his own shortcomings? He berates the millionaire in a country where the poorest of us has an open pathway to millions if we care to pay the price. He says, 'I am denied the right to make an honest living in a land of plenty.' Let this man drop his complaints and use his abilities in a constructive way, and cease poisoning his heart with negative thoughts.

"What can he do? A million tasks await the willing worker who will tackle the job in the spirit of gaiety. He is busy selling himself failure-producing ideas that may lead him 'to the river.' Let him sell himself success-producing ideas.

"Tell him that this is a message from a kindred human who has traveled his road and has been privileged to look back and see clearly the nature of the mental and material morass through which he passed."

FROM the Middle West comes a very long letter from which these are key sentences:

"The majority of business men I have known do all they can to hamper individual development because it's good business, they think. I have seen executives pig-minded enough to believe that as long as an ambitious person is sap enough to do superior work in a mediocre job, at mediocre pay, he should be discouraged about promotion.

"No, ability is not always recognized. I've seen relatives go over the heads of clever, hard, conscientious workers—men of no experience and questionable ability broken in to work that a man who was in line (by virtue of real ability) for promotion should have."

ANOTHER reader says:

"Some of your remarks are so childish that I hasten to correct you. You are so far removed from the vast army of struggling humanity that it is difficult for you to analyze the situation from the side of the great majority.

"Do you know that there are many able men and women today working for meager wages, due to the political or unscrupulous maneuverings of petty bosses? Where is there a law that protects the worker? Where does the humane side of the question come in?

"Throw away your money and take up their task and learn the lesson of the majority. You will find that success comes only to those who through destiny or chance, or whatever you may call it, get the breaks."

CHARLES T. M'CHESNEY, Philadelphia, writes:

"From my reading of your articles, I judge you have had to work for everything you have gotten, that you are in favor of improved conditions for the laboring man, and that you have traveled enough and are broad-minded enough not to blame a handful of men for any personal complaints or troubles. I am a bull on America and on the Americans of tradition—the hard-working, hard-plugging, hard-fighting reliable fellows who keep going on and 'damn the torpedoes.' What if some of them do make a pile—Don't they deserve it?"

IF nursing a perpetual grudge against the whole order of things would help one to succeed, then I might have different views, but, as I see it, indulgence in self-pity, in chronic pessimism, in wholesale condemnation of others, makes for neither success nor happiness, but for failure and unhappiness. Does not common sense tell us that it is wise to make the best of things?

FINANCIAL NEWS AND VIEWS

Stock Market Unsettled.

Several factors combined to unsettle the market today, not the least of which was the rumor that Pierre S. du Pont may resign as the chairmanship of the General Motors board on Thursday. Another was the firmer tendency in the money market where call loans were marked up to 7 per cent early in the session after renewals had been made at 6½. Later call money went to 7¼ per cent. Today's renewal rate compares with 6 per cent yesterday, although demand funds reached 7 per cent before the close of the market last night. While support was not lacking for the big stocks today, the buyers appeared to feel that the situation favored their side and bids were lowered as sellers attempted to dispose of their stocks to await the result of the du Pont rumor, the higher money rate and the brokers' loan statement due tomorrow after the close. Another increase in loans tomorrow will likely aggravate the trading situation as the net correction of the loan total is barely over $300,000,000 from the peak late in May and the crop moving and holiday mercantile demand for credit is just ahead.

Brokers' Loans.

According to the last published figures brokers loans were $303,844,000 down from the peak reached on June 6. On June 27 there had been a decline of $103,976,000 from the peak. How much correction do the federal reserve authorities and the New York member banks desire is the big question in stock market circles. While banking officials maintain a discreet silence on the subject, David Friday, economist and nationally known authority on interest rates, has essayed to answer this question. Dr. Friday ascribes the rise in brokers' loans from nonbanking sources partly to the fact that trustees, investment trustees, and investors had in recent months sold stocks in the hope of rebuying them cheaper. Meantime, they have been lending out the proceeds of sales. When they return to the market as buyers, they will withdraw their loans, and buy outright securities now being held on margin by speculators. When will they return? Here is Dr. Friday's answer: "When stocks fall further and give repeated evidence of resistance to further declines these people will begin to re-purchase stocks with their money which they now have loaned out to brokers. Such re-purchases will tend to reduce brokers' loans. It is a fair guess that they will begin buying in quantities when the decline in brokers' loans has reached $500,000,000.00

Radio Had Poor Quarter.

Radio Corporation of America and subsidiaries, reports for June quarter net income of $1,401,505 after deducting federal taxes, etc., equal after preferred dividends to 91 cents a share on the 1,155,400 shares of no-par common, against net of $3,128,874 or $2.40 a share on 1,175,000 shares of the preceding quarter, and $428,587 or $1.07 a share on 395,579 share (par $50) 7 per cent cumulative preferred stock in the June quarter of 1927.

Income was $4,524,779 or $3.31 a common share, against $552,386 or $1.39 a share on the preferred in the like period last year. These figures show no material deviation from the preliminary figures published two weeks ago.

Du pont May Quit "Motors."

The New York American today says that Pierre Samuel Du Pont will resign as chairman of the board of directors of the General Motors Corporation before the end of the week. Mr. Du Pont was reached by the American last night at his home in Wilmington, Del. The financier said he did not feel able at this time to either confirm or deny the report of his resignation, but added emphatically: "I have nothing to say at this time. I will make an important statement to the directors of General Motors at their meeting in New York on Thursday afternoon, and the statement will be given out when made." The American will say that the reported resignation of Mr. Du Pont is not disassociated from the reclassification of his friend and long-time associate, John J. Raskob, who retired as chairman of the finance committee of General Motors to take charge of Governor Smith's presidential campaign.

Raskob's Future.

Wall Street is much concerned about John J. Raskob's future. It was made plain in the letter accepting his resignation from the General Motors finance committee that he could return to his post after the political campaign. However, in well-informed quarters it is said that he can have a post with the Radio Corporation should he so desire. Then, again, a far-fetched rumor is to the effect that he will become connected with the Chrysler organization. Should he be successful in his political endeavors he might wind up as Secretary of the Treasury, in the opinion of one of his followers.

General Railway Signal.

While General Railway Signal Company has not been earning its common dividend requirements so far this year, outlook has definitely turned for the better. A good volume of business is pending which may result in substantial orders soon. Declines in earnings and volume of business since 1926 do not indicate the market for the company's line of products has been satisfied, even temporarily, for authorities estimate only about 6 per cent of the railroads of the country are equipped with automatic safety control devices. Railway Signal earnings will turn sharply upward if the Interstate Commerce Commission issues an order in the next few months requiring the carriers to continue installation of automatic train control devices, although the effect of such an order would be more likely to be felt on 1929 earnings. The commission is expected to make a report in the fall on the adequacy of present installations, basing its findings on hearings held last February.

ROUND TABLE of BUSINESS

Union Switch & Signal Crankshafts Used on Wright Motors—Company's Forge Output Little Realized.

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

PITTSBURGH has assumed a share in the rapidly growing airplane industry. It is not a maker of planes but its contribution of parts is assuming large proportions.

The Union Switch and Signal Company supplies the Wright Aeronautical Corporation with crankshafts for the Wright Whirlwind Motors. Crankshafts made here have driven planes through some of the most critical tests given in the last two years of record-breaking achievement in aviation.

THE Southern Cross which flew from San Francisco to Australia was propelled by three Wright motors each of which had a Union Switch and Signal crankshaft. This was one of the hardest continuous runs ever made by an airplane. Only a brief stop was made at Hawaii for gasoline and the engines were given no mechanical attention.

THE Woolorack which won the race from San Francisco to Hawaii was driven by a Wright engine with a crankshaft made by this company. Lindbergh's new plane also uses this Pittsburgh product.

In addition to supplying crankshafts for the Wright motors the Union Switch and Signal Company makes forged parts for Pratt & Whitney who build the Hornet and Wasp planes and some parts for Curtiss and the Cincinnati Air Craft organizations.

THE extent of the forge business of the Union Switch & Signal Company is not generally known. Shortly after the war the forge department, which was organized to supply parts for signal production, started to do commercial work.

The bulk of orders are for automobile parts such as axles, crankshafts, connecting rods, steering knuckles, and camshafts.

The new Fords use brake parts made at the company's plant in Swissvale.

Chevrolet, Oakland, Pontiac, Auburn and Mack also use various Union Switch & Signal parts.

DURING the war this company started the production of complete airplane engines but this was discontinued after the signing of the Armistice. The experience gained in this field, however, was instrumental in establishing the company as a maker of parts.

The forge department has been operating practically at capacity all of this year.

THE company's principal activity is in the production of railway signal equipment and automatic train control devices.

At present railroad demand for these types of equipment is slow but for the past few years Union Switch & Signal has been a very large contributor to the earnings of the Westinghouse Air Brake Company which controls it through stock ownership.

A NEW product which promises to contribute substantially to Union Switch's future volume is the Hannauer car retarder. In hump back railroad yards the tracks are laid on an incline so that gravity can be used in switching. The car retarder permits the control of the movements of the cars with a smaller crew and eliminates the danger to equipment through collisions.

ANOTHER subsidiary, the Westinghouse Automotive Brake Company, has been securing very satisfactory sales results with the Westinghouse vacuum brake which was recently placed on the market. For years the company had been making air brake equipment for trucks and buses but this was not adaptable to small passenger cars.

THE vacuum brake secures its energy from the intake manifold. Pressure on the brake pedal opens a valve which allows the vacuum to move a piston connected to the regular brake system of the car.

The brake is designed so that two-thirds of the braking pressure is applied by the piston and one-third by the foot pedal. This insures driver control of the car in the event of a stalled engine.

THE lack of railroad car buying in any large quantities is still exerting a retarding influence on the business of the parent company. Net profit in the first half of 1928 was slightly less than dividend requirements for the period but this offers no cause for alarm when the strong cash position of the company is considered.

Cause of Work Delays Should Be Eliminated

Director Edward G. Lang, of the Department of Public Works, is expected to award contracts this week on the second group of street improvements for the year and to advertise for bids for the third group. Awards to contractors of the works specified in the first group were made only a week ago, so it will be seen that the construction program for the year is begun rather late. It seems that it is much later than is necessary, and there is fear in official circles, outside of the Public Works Department, that bad weather may find some of the improvements uncompleted. Director Lang is said to have expressed confidence that the work will be done before winter sets in.

That may be the outcome. We can hope for the best, anyway. But it does not seem like the greatest effiicency to see an extensive program of improvements not ready to be started by midsummer, when spring is the time for the beginning of such projects. The department has all winter to work on some of its plans. It knows what funds it will have available as soon as the budget is fixed, but even prior to that time it could have a partial tentative program outlined and could have actual working plans begun on the more important foreseen projects, some of the lesser ones being held in reserve pending any curtailment that might be made necessary by budget restrictions.

We realize that it is unfair to Mr. Lang to make what might seem like a general criticism when we are not aware of what handicaps his office may be working under. What we complain about is the situation, no matter what the cause may be, and we express the hope that, wherever the fault lay, it may be remedied. It ought to be possible to arrange schedules of improvements so that work could be begun with the first good weather in the spring.

The primary responsibility in such matters is in Council and the executive office, where construction work originates in the form of ordinances.

Upward Trend Is Shown In Pittsburgh Business

Like the speaker in the popular song who is philosophic about his "ups and downs," we can find cheer in the bulletin of the Chamber of Commerce relative to business in Pittsburgh for the first six months of the present year. The trend, according to the bulletin, which gives statistics on building, finance, industry, etc., indicates that we are having our "ups." The fluid in the industrial barometer rises gradually but steadily higher.

This is indicated in the increase of financial clearings, use of electric energy, telephone installations and building over the same items for the corresponding period of last year. The most encouraging factor in the compilation is the increase in building, the total of $25,974,378 for the recent six months representing an expansion of 35.3 per cent over the first half of 1927. Employment continues to maintain an increased rate.

There is every reason to be optimistic and no reason at all for pessimism.

Nice German Family

Congratulations to Father and Mother von Hindenburg.

VON HINDENBURG'S GRANDCHILDREN AND DAUGHTER-IN-LAW.

This picture isn't particularly EXCITING. It doesn't come from Hollywood, nobody in it ever flew across the ocean, or saw the North Pole.

We print it because it is our idea of a FINE FAMILY.

The lady, with common sense that causes her to show her intelligent forehead, and draw back her hair, is the wife of Maj. von Hindenburg, daughter-in-law of the President of the German Republic. The two little girls on the right are her daughters, fine, well brought up little German girls. The little boy is Hans von Brockhausen, son of President Hindenburg's eldest daughter.

There are millions of such children, millions of such sensible, devoted German wives and mothers. Because they exist, no defeat could ruin that country.

Not even cruel starvation to which the children were subjected for five years—in Germany, as they were in some of the Allied countries—could destroy such national value as this.

Good mothers, earnest children, good education, serious thought, determination to live down the past and build up the future.

All that you see in the face of this good mother, and in the faces of the children.

R. REAMY

Garrett P. Serviss Says:

Sunspots and Heat

"I understand that sunspots reach their maximum every 11 years; also that this year they will wax greatest, being a cold summer. I recollect, however, that 11 years ago, when I resided in Providence, R. I. there were two successive August days when the temperature was respectively 98 and 99 degrees, and the weather generally was pretty warm. Have I been misinformed with regard to the 11-year cycle and the consequent cold weather at its height?—Mrs. M. S., Bronx."

YOUR information about the 11-year cycle is substantially correct, except with regard to the effect upon the weather. It has not been proved that the seasons are definitely colder or hotter at sunspot maximum. On the contrary there is reason to believe that the total radiation of heat from the sun increases with increase of spottedness. The solar constant, which means the intensity of the sun's radiation per unit surface as it enters our atmosphere, has been known to increase as much as 2 per cent at a time of maximum spottedness. On the other hand, during a sunspot minimum the solar constant has been found to decline.

But these variations are themselves more or less irregular in detail, and it is difficult to disentangle their effects upon the weather and the climate from local, i. e., terrestrial, causes producing similar results. Upon the whole the earth probably receives more heat during sunspot maxima, but the fluctuations of radiation are then also large, so that the result may be a hot spell when cooler weather is expected, or a cold interval in the midst of a warm season. The most conspicuous effects that can with probability be ascribed to the influence of a sunspot maximum, like the one now near its height, is capriciousness of weather conditions, and excesses of heat and cold, with frequent untoward changes. The atmosphere is the source and cause of the uncertainty that exists on this subject. It is the mechanism through which the effects of the sun's radiation are distributed over the earth, and it is a mechanism of a fluid nature, subject to an infinity of local disturbances difficult to trace and co-ordinate. The effects of an increase in the solar constant may be masked or even reversed by such things as great volumes of volcanic dust.

The influence of sunspots over the earth's magnetism, and in the stimulation of magnetic storms and electric earth-currents is unquestionable, but the hitch comes when an effort is made to correlate these with weather changes or climatic variations.

Still, out of the confusion rise the two certainties, first that our sun is a variable star (though not greatly variable, at least at present), and second that relation between the sun and the earth is such that the latter cannot escape the consequences of the irregularities and unsteadiness of its great solar master. The sun is no colt, since its age must be thousands of millions of years, and it may be settling down to steadier carriage in the future. On the other hand there are some who think its variability may eventually greatly increase. Unfortunately, or fortunately, we cannot say of this as we do of so many changeable things: "Well, wait and see." For the time measures concerned in this matter are not of the same order as those of human life.

Concentration

IF YOU have not been accustomed to business conferences at which men give long and serious thought to problems, you think such meetings tiresome.

You feel that a lot of time is wasted—that it should be possible for you and men like you to do the business in a short time.

But would it be well and thoughtfully done?

Aren't you given to snap judgments?

You don't try to think far ahead.

You want to meet contingencies as they come and avoid worry.

Perhaps that is the very reason why other men have been advanced, while you cannot get ahead in your position.

They have been willing to give time and attention to the conferences and to small details in order to avoid serious obstacles later on.

Business meetings bore the man who is not interested.

In every successful business there must be those who think and plan.

If you cannot pin your mind down to cases, you lack discipline.

Men are valuable in proportion to their ability to concentrate on their problems.

Moonlight

So long as there is moonlight
And all its witchery
To lend a vague enchantment
To every land and sea;
So long as with the Summer
The reddening rose returns,
Still will that romance flower
For which man's spirit yearns,

For moonlight bears a message
Upon its silver wings,
A tale of unguessed raptures,
Of far, ethereal things,
And life will move to music
Whose echoes never die,
So long as there is moonlight
To charm the sea and sky.

Problems

ONE Richmond, Cal., woman has 19 children, the last arrivals being twins. She says she would rather have children than furniture. Think of a woman with a heart so big that she hopes after the nineteenth child that she will have MORE. Yet she is fully aware that if they are to have a cantaloupe for breakfast she must buy a crate of them; that with 21 at the table, one pie would look silly and whenever they need five feather pillows they have one chicken dinner.

The father is a barber. How many shaves to buy a Sunday dinner for 21 people? And the 21 eat three times a day, 365 days a year!

If you think YOU have problems read this over again. That is 63 meals a day, or 22,985 meals a year.

Great Passages from the Bible

A Common Evil

(Ecclesiastes 6)

THERE is an evil which I have seen under the sun, and it is common among men:

A man to whom God hath given riches, wealth, and honour, so that he wanteth nothing for his soul of all that he desireth, yet God giveth him not power to eat thereof, but a stranger eateth it: this is vanity, and it is an evil disease.

If a man beget an hundred children, and live many years, so that the days of his years be many, and his soul be not filled with good, and also that he have no burial; I say, that an untimely birth is better than he.

For he cometh in with vanity, and departeth in darkness, and his name shall be covered with darkness.

Moreover he hath not seen the sun, nor known any thing: this hath more rest than the other.

Yea, though he live a thousand years twice told, yet hath he seen no good: do not all go to one place?

All the labour of man is for his mouth, and yet the appetite is not filled.

For what hath the wise more than the fool? What hath the poor, that knoweth to walk before the living?

Better is the sight of the eyes than the wandering of the desire: this is also vanity and vexation of spirit.

That which hath been is named already, and it is known that it is man: neither may he contend with him that is mightier than he.

Seeing there be many things that increase vanity, what is man the better?

For who knoweth what is good for man in this life, all the days of his vain life which he spendeth as a shadow? for who can tell a man what shall be after him under the sun?

Tales that are Told

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS

I GUESS people pay their small debts better than they used to. Anyhow, you don't hear so many jokes any more about beating the tailor and borrowing a dime. But I did hear one about a guy that borrowed $10. He met the fellow he borrowed it from on the street, about a year later, and the fellow says, "Say, Jones, I wish you'd stop worrying about that $10 you owe me."

"Well," says Jones, "I was a bit worried about it, but if you feel that way I suppose I'd better not. You don't need it right now, is that it?"

"No, that ain't it. I need it all right, but there ain't any use of both of us worrying about it, so you better quit."

Out of Reach

THE young policeman had been instructed in the useful art of jiu-jitsu. But when he appeared in court recently, leading a diminutive man, whom he accused of having assaulted him, the art did not seem to have been particularly profitable to him.

His head was so swathed in bandages that his voice was scarcely audible through them; and the magistrate looked down upon him in surprise.

"What!" he exclaimed. "That little man assaulted you? How can you confess to having let such a small man knock you about? You have been taught jiu-jitsu Why did you not put it into practice?"

"This case, sir," mumbled the policeman, "is one in which jiu-jitsu was useless. He—

"Nonsense!" said the magistrate, impatiently. "There could be no such case. Just show me how the little man gripped you, and Constable Podgers will explain how you could have foiled him."

The new policeman shuffled his feet uneasily.

"Thank you, sir," he muttered; "but I've been wanting to explain that he didn't grip me anywhere. He dropped a brick on my head from a third-floor window!"

New York Day by Day

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—When a sudden quiet comes to Chinatown, the police become taut with expectancy. Plainclothesmen are hurried to every pivotal point in the crooked narrow streets running off the hip of Chatham Square. Patrolmen walk in pairs.

It is the calm before the storm—an interlude preceding the bark of sawed-off shotguns in another tong war. In the subterranean catacombs shuffling figures are hatching a reprisal that may run Chinatown's streets red with blood.

The first symptom is when the Chinese children are kept in from sidewalk games. Slowly life seems to evaporate. Tables are no longer set on the restaurant balconies. Chinese with impassive faces lurk with heavy-lidded indifference in hallways.

But their hands are in their loose sleeves—clutching knives. Old men squat in the dark interior of their shops, apparently drowsing, but in reality waiting. From a mysterious source the word has gone out, and any second the hatchets may fly.

At a thousand different vantage points eyes are glued to peepholes. The melee begins like the quick blare of a rocket. And in an instant the streets are swarming. A tong battle rarely lasts over five or ten minutes, but the carnage is often frightful.

Before the ambulances have moved the dead and wounded, Chinatown is again showing the world its usual sleepy decorum. Everybody shuffles about his accustomed business. Children return to pavement play and the streets fill with leisurely strollers.

The police face the inscrutibility that is so characteristically Chinese. Nobody knows anything. Oblique eyes seem filmed by a dull indifference. There are many arrests, but that is all. And the police merely await another outbreak.

Nothing is quite so agonizing as to be a part of an audience watching the first night fizzle of a play. In theatrical parlance it is "laying an egg." When a flop is pronounced the actors sense it before the drop of the curtain on the first act, but carry on with a hopeless futility. To them it means another dreary hunt for work. It is a phase of the optimism of the stage for no player to believe a play can flop until it actually does on the first night. It seems to come as a surprise always.

Flapper talk and its assurance is confounding to those of us beginning furtively to edge up to those upper and lower sets in dental display cases. Today a shingled young thing dropped her vanity case which I restored. "That was clean cut of you," she said and all I could think to reply was, "Yes, mam."

A Radio Campaign

By DR. FRANK CRANE.

In 1920 Station KDKA of Pittsburgh played a Listz Rhapsody on an automatic piano and asked the audience whether they liked it and if they wanted any more.

In a week the electrical shops in Pittsburgh and the surrounding country sold out all their radio supplies. The people liked it and so radio broadcasting was born.

From one station in 1920 to 700 in 1928.

No industry that we know of has developed so rapidly as the radio business.

Those of us who were half inclined to buy the stock a short time ago when it was selling around 90 are now kicking ourselves because we didn't do it.

Twenty million people listened in at each of the presidential conventions. Those who were present at the conventions did not learn of Hoover's and Smith's nomination any sooner than the listeners-in.

Calvin Coolidge was the first President to use the radio in his campaign.

In the coming campaign the radio is destined to play an important part. It now ranks with the newspapers as a medium for publicity.

It will cost somebody a good deal of money for a campaign speaker to exalt his candidate and his party, but as far as we know nobody is going to object to campaign expenses of this kind.

Congress has provided by a law enacted in 1926 that all parties shall have equal rights in broadcasting. Of course, however, the candidate with the most money behind him will most use the radio.

It is a far cry from a candidate making speeches in various halls throughout the country and from the rear platform of trains or talking to a few hundred people from his porch to speaking by means of the radio into millions of ears at the same time.

Excellent as our newspapers are in reporting the speeches of candidates the radio is better, for it enables the populace to hear the man's voice and to hear it without going to a meeting, in the privacy of his own home.

Conditions are rapidly changing and before long we shall probably see the antiquated viva voce elections in little booths in the streets done away with and voting by mail adopted.

It is all a question of getting to the people rapidly and of quickly ascertaining their will. New inventions go forward with the progress of democracy.

OH, THESE WOMEN!

By LEOLA ALLARD

WHEN they broadcast that Gene Tunney was going to become a priest, it was a slight inaccuracy. What they meant was that he was going to marry a girl named Bishop.

A New York woman, in love with a gink, burned herself to death because she was "misled." And aren't we all?

If the misled women in New York alone, who are now figuratively burning up, began to blaze literally, they could make Rome look like a back yard bonfire, even allowing for Nero and his violin.

It must be sort o' humiliating for a great state like the Lone Star to have folks who read the newspapers be confused as to whether Texas is a state or a night club hostess.

In New York they aren't. They know it's a hostess.

From Northwestern University comes the news that soon it will not be necessary to kill people in war. Humane gasses will make it possible to put whole cities to sleep, temporarily.

The possibilities are endless. It would be awful if Chicago's outlaws got hold of the information and started on humane robberies.

A man could, with the new gas, humanely lull to sleep his wife and noisy children and have a quiet Sunday instead of a picnic in the country.

And wouldn't that be a great little idea for the young Sultan of Morocco, whose father bequeathed him 300 wives? He has already run away to France to get away from their bickerings. He wants to contemplate the gift, he says, before taking up harem life seriously.

And how could anyone taking up harem life, take it up any other way?

A Los Angeles man took his wife fishing, got her soaking wet and made her take a long boat ride home in her wet clothes. The court decreed that such behavior was cruelty and gave her a divorce.

Maybe he wanted her teeth to chatter so she couldn't talk. Los Angeles is the most original community in the world!

The American Medical Association says: "Don't talk baby talk to babies. It gets into vicious speech habits."

But it's all right for the women to continue to talk baby talk to men and pet dogs. No warning against that. Yet talking baby talk to men has done things to their speech that would bar them from good society.
